Pilgrims follow Way of the Cross

JERUSALEM (AP) — Weeping, praying, singing, pilgrims from many parts of the world followed the last steps of Jesus Christ through the Holy City's Street of Sorrow on Good Friday.

Most were unaware that two terrorist bombs had exploded outside the walls of the Old City, wounding 13 persons.

Black-clad priests and nuns from Italy and brown-robed Franciscan monks mingled with off-duty United Nations peacekeeping soldiers and faithful of every color along the Way of the Cross.

THERE were pilgrims from as far away as the United States and Japan. Some toiled under heavy wooden crosses 10 feet high, others trailed behind the large groups, singly or in pairs.

The Ministry of Tourism said 11,500 visitors arrived in the Holy Land for the Easter and Passover celebrations compared to 9,000 last year. But police said the Good Friday procession was smaller than last year's.

The two bombs were wired to wristwatches.

The first one went off in a bus and wounded 13 persons. The second bomb was discovered in a shopping bag in crowded Zion Square and police had time to clear the street before it went off. Ten Arabs were seized for questioning.

BUT on the Via Dolorosa, even those pilgrims who were aware of the bomb blasts appeared certain they would come to no harm on this holiest of pilgrimages.

"There is absolutely no reason to worry," said Sister Marie Laurette, smiling and wearing the white habit of the Sisters of Charity. She is from Mount St. Vincent's College, in Riverdale, N.Y.

At 75, she was the oldest pilgrim among a group of American Roman Catholics led by the Rev. Paul Auer of St. Mary's Parish, Anacortes, Wash.

"I'm not worried. I always feel safe," said Margaret Vuilleminot, a widow from Dalton, Mass., making her fourth trip to Israel in as many years. "Some of my friends thought I was mad," said Dr. Rosemary Spicer, of Westchester, Pa., admitting she had doubts about making the pilgrimage.

Winds dying, warming due

Chill, howling winds, which have raked across Southern California most of the last week, are expected to subside this afternoon as the month's waning days prepare to escort March out like a lamb.

National Weather Service forecasters predicted the dying winds would whistle through coastal canyons at speeds up to 50 mph this morning but would subside by late afternoon. Moderate winds of 15 to 25 mph are predicted this morning in coastal areas.

Weathermen, meanwhile, said the tail end of the winds should be accompanied by a warming trend which is expected to push the mercury up to 65 degrees today.

Easter Sunday should dawn fair and sunny with the high predicted to reach 68 degrees, forecasters said. They added that an extended forecast promises fair, sunny days Monday and Tuesday.

'Kill him!' yells mob

Two policemen slain, sniper captured

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP) — A sniper firing from a house into a downtown street killed two policemen and seriously wounded another Friday night before officers stormed the building and dragged out a bleeding man.

"Kill him! Kill him!" onlookers shouted as the man was pulled down the steps and pushed into a police car.

The man was taken to Burlington County Hospital, where hospital spokesman Clarke Eston identified him as James Carhart, about 25.

Carhart was in serious condition with a gunshot wound in the right buttock, the spokesman said.

Carhart's brother, Louis, also was brought to the hospital, but he was not admitted as a patient, Eston said.

Police declined to make any statements about the wounded man.

The gunman, using what police said was an automatic or semiauto-matic weapon, held officers at bay for more than three hours as police poured shots and tear gas into the three-story house on a downtown street. More than 100 officers took part in the final assault on the house.

The firing began at about 6 p.m. and the officers were hit as they tried to flush the sniper out. Neighbors in an adjacent house cowered under furniture until they were finally rescued by police.

Reds enter Da Nang; situation 'hopeless'

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops moved into Da Nang under cover of a heavy artillery barrage early today and sources said the situation in South Vietnam's second largest city was "hopeless."

The sources said there had been a "total breakdown of discipline" among the government troops in the city, 370 miles north of Saigon on the coast of the South China Sea.

All communications with the city were lost except for a single civilian Telex machine.

More than 1.5 million persons are located in the Da Nang area, two-thirds of them refugees desperately trying to flee to the south.

South Vietnamese military commanders and American officials left the city Friday.

The South Vietnamese command in Saigon said there was street rioting in the city, and Communist commandos had infiltrated Da Nang under cover of shellfire.

Military sources said elements of a marine division were still fighting in foothills above Da Nang, along with part of the government's 1st Infantry Division.

But the sources said the entire 2nd Division and elements of other outfits numbering at least 100,000 men were out of action.

"The situation is hopeless," one source said.

The South Vietnamese military command in Saigon said Saturday at least eight persons were killed in rioting in Da Nang, and thousands of persons trying to get aboard evacuation planes forced a sharp reduction in the number of mercy flights out of the city.

"The situation in Da Nang is very serious," command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien told reporters in Saigon.

"Because of the refugees, Communist sappers were able to penetrate the city very easily. The security problem is very difficult."

Sketchy reports indicated a mass panic had hit the city.

South Vietnamese commander Lt. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, U.S. Consul General Albert Francis and the rest of his staff took refuge on a ship anchored offshore in the South China Sea at about midnight Friday, military sources said.

It was not immediately clear whether Truong, who was under direct orders from South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to defend Da Nang, intended to order his troops out of the port city or make them stand and fight.

Truong on Thursday had vowed to fight for Da Nang and restore order within 48 hours. He issued an order to shoot troublemakers on sight.

$1 billion in weapons lost by Viets

By B. WEINRAUB
New York Times Service

SAIGON — The value of American military weapons and equipment lost over the past two weeks by the South Vietnamese totals more than $1 billion, according to qualified Vietnamese sources.

The abandonment of hundreds of artillery pieces, as well as trucks, ammunition planes, mortars, tanks, armored personnel carriers and rifles — coupled with the rapid retreat of army units — is viewed by Vietnamese and Western sources as a stunning psychological blow for South Vietnam.

A senior Western official, who has spent more than a decade in South Vietnam, said Friday,

"These losses are very, very, very considerable. It's a catastrophic loss."

Another Western source said, "We're facing devastating failure."

An informed Vietnamese said that the armed forces logistics command has made a tentative estimate of at least $1 billion in equipment losses—virtually all of it left over by the Americans—as a result of the government's abrupt decision to abandon two-thirds of the nation and the hasty, panicky civilian and army exodus that followed.

These losses are expected to be a key source of discussion between Gen. Frederic Weyand, U.S.

Army chief of staff, who was sent here by President Ford to assess the deteriorating military situation. Weyand and U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin met Friday morning with President Nguyen Van Thieu for over an hour, but there was no official report of what they discussed. Weyand is expected to remain here for several days.

Will address nation tonight Ford to reveal tax decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will address the nation tonight to disclose his decision on the $24.8 billion tax cut bill and make a statement on economic policy, the White House announced Friday.

However, Press Secretary Ron Nessen declined to give any hints about whether Ford will sign or veto the tax measure.

When asked whether the President had made up his mind, Nessen told reporters: "He is deciding and will announce his decision tomorrow evening."

Nessen said the three major networks had agreed to broadcast Ford's address on television and radio. The President plans to speak at 4:30 p.m. PDT from the Oval Office for about 10 to 15 minutes, his press secretary said.

Besides the tax cut bill, Ford also will speak on "broader economic matters," Nessen said.

Within an hour after his address, the President will leave for Palm Springs, Calif., for an Easter holiday vacation and several speechmaking and business stops.

Ford has been conferring with his top economic advisers for the past two days while trying to reach a decision on the tax bill, which would provide the biggest tax cut for Americans in 30 years.

Nessen said Ford has received written recommendations from all of his economic policy board advisers. However, a White House source said there was no consensus in those recommendations.

A high Treasury source, who said he did not know Ford's decision on the tax rebate bill, nevertheless declared the bill contains "several provisions that are outrageous."

The official said the provisions — he listed five — are of major concern to the administration and "I know they are being studied" at the White House. He said the administration objects to the following:

—The tax credit for new home purchases. The Treasury official said this provision would be of limited benefit to the economy, although a few builders and realtors might individually gain from it. "It would be a lousy precedent," he said.

—The earned income credit. He said this amounts to welfare reform and is similar to a negative income tax. While it may be desirable in other legislation, "it has no place in this bill," the official said.

—The $50 payment to Social Security recipients. Funds for this would have to come from general revenue, which has never been done before in the Social Security program, he said, adding that it does not belong in a tax cut bill.

—Repeal of the oil depletion allowance for big companies, while maintaining it for independent companies. Again, the official said, repeal is "incompatible" with what should be the purpose of the rebate bill.

—Provisions affecting taxation of U.S. firms operating overseas. These provisions would limit the degree to which the companies can subtract taxes paid to foreign governments from their U.S. tax liability.

In addition, the official pointed out the total amount of the congressional tax plan is $6 billion above what Ford had recommended.

He said the legislation is potentially inflationary and that money gained in special benefits by Social Security recipients, for example, could be more than offset by a return to high inflation next year.

Home-buying billions go begging

By RICHARD HUGHES
UPI Business Writer

Billions of dollars are available for Americans who want to borrow money for homes, but the number of persons applying for mortgages has picked up only slightly, savings institutions said Friday.

In addition to the large surplus of available mortgage money, the lenders said, interest rates for conventional home loans have dropped to 9 per cent or lower in some areas.

Meanwhile, First National City Bank of New York, the nation's second largest, Friday lowered its prime interest rate to 7 1/4, the lowest rate in 22 months.

The prime, which banks charge their most credit-worthy corporate customers, indirectly affects other interest rates, such as that charged for mortgages, by setting a floor from which other rates are scaled upwards.

In Chicago, The United States League of Savings Associations said deposits at savings and loan institutions rose an estimated $3.1 billion in February, following another large gain of $3.3 billion in January.

"Early reports indicate," the association said, "that heavy inflows of deposits into savings associations has continued into March."

"All indications are that the first quarter of this year will be the best on record for the business in terms of savings gains."

The Federal Home Loan Bank of San Francisco reported that $627 million was deposited in accounts in California, Arizona and Nevada in February. Coming on the heels of $604 million in January, it was the largest two-month deposit total in history.

Savings and loan associations are the nation's major lenders of mortgage loans. When deposits are high, it means there is more money available, normally at cheaper rates, to lend to home buyers.

The heavy flow of deposits and the trend toward lower mortgage rates has not been matched by an increase in demand for loans to buy homes.

However, the league said, commitments for mortgages were estimated at nearly $3 billion, double October's total and substantially higher than the $1.9 billion in December.

"The apparent sudden rise in commitments signals a leap in mortgage lending in the next few months, though there is still a note of uncertainty about the level mortgage activity will attain."

The housing industry has been hit hard by the recession, and government statistics show that there is a glut of 400,000 homes built in 1974 still on the market. Little new construction is expected until the backlog is sold.

India expels penniless American mystic

Combined News Services

An American Hindu mystic, who Friday gave up his long fight with Indian authorities for permission to live there, arrived at New York's Kennedy Airport Friday night saying he would be much happier in India.

The barefooted mystic, Eric Cameron Smith of Studio City, Calif., plodded off Pan Am Flight 001 at 7:55 p.m. accompanied by an Indian immigration guard and a doctor.

"I have been in India 19 months and I know I would be much happier there," Eric said, clutching at his flowing, ivory-colored robe.

Eric was met by David Bogalsky, a representative of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. He was deported from India because he had no visible means of support.

The mystic was vague about his plans for the future, and upon questioning said firmly, "I am simply interested in God."

Eric ended a 23-day sit-in at the New Delhi airport Friday after police forced his thumb onto an expulsion order when he refused to sign it.

Looking downcast and suffering from a leg infection, the 30-year-old, sandy-haired American decided to leave without further resistance.

"Last night I read a story of a devotee who was told to walk into the fire, and I decided I should go," he said.

Eric had appealed to Indian authorities to renew his visa so he could continue to live with his guru in a cave on the Ganges River, as he has done for nearly two years. His appeal was turned down because he had no visible means of support.

He was taken to the airport by police, but thwarted a first attempt to send him off by tearing up his U.S. passport and renouncing his American citizenship. U.S. officials issued a passport, but he foiled a second attempt to fly him out of the country by refusing to fasten his seat belt. The pilot refused to take off for safety reasons.

While officials debated their next step, airport employees fixed Eric a pallet in the airport's transit lounge and their wives kept him fed.

Unrestricted

The State Department wanted to restrict Russian movie actress Victoria Fyodorova's travels in the U.S., but her father, retired Rear Adm. Jackson R. Tate, "raised enough hell" to get her an unrestricted visa, Tate's son said Friday in Orange Park, Fla.

"When the United States first granted my sister a visa, it was extremely limited in where she could go," said retired Navy Capt. Hugh Tate, Tate's son by his first wife, Hilda.

Victoria is the love child of a wartime affair between the elder Tate, then a Navy captain on a mission to Moscow, and Russian actress Zoya Fyodorova.

Paroled

Former West Virginia Gov. W.W. Barron, imprisoned for more than three years for bribery, was paroled Friday.

Barron, governor from 1960 to 1964, was released from the federal penitentiary near Eglin Air Force Base and, accompanied by his wife Opal, flew to the couple's condominium home in Pompano Beach, Fla.

Barron served three years, four months and 19 days of a 17-year sentence for bribing the jury foreman of a 1968 federal trial.

Barron, a Democrat, went on trial in 1968, charged with bribery in connection with a state purchasing contract scandal that touched several members of his administration.

He was acquitted while several other defendants were convicted, but the government later charged him with paying $25,000 to the jury foreman.

Fun loving

James Chapman, the fun-loving pensioner whose life of adventure began when he turned 95, died Friday in a Wisbech, England, hospital at age 103.

He had been hospitalized earlier in the day after being hurt in a fall at his home in Wisbech, 90 miles north of London.

Three weeks ago the jovial, white-haired Chapman achieved a life-long ambition by sailing for eight hours in a Royal Navy submarine off Britain's south coast. It was the last in a series of adventures he had experienced in the past eight years—including rides in a helicopter, a glider, a Tiger Moth training plane and a hot-air balloon. He also drove a race car and a combine harvester.

The painful shoulder problem is common among the elderly and makes movement of the shoulder difficult, but is considered relatively easy to treat.

Tornado kills 4, hurts 60

Combined News Services

WARREN, Ark.—Four persons were killed and 60 others were injured when a tornado hit the south side of Warren Friday night. The National Weather Service said extensive property damage was reported, and state police said they had unconfirmed reports that fires had broken out in the southeast Arkansas town. Warren has a population of about 5,500. Southwestern Bell Telephone Company estimated the twister knocked out service to 1,600 phone customers, and a state police official said National Guard units had been called out. Earlier Friday night, another tornado struck south of El Dorado, Ark., near the Louisiana line. That twister swept the roofs from some houses, but no injuries were reported. Meantime, searchers in planes, National Guard helicopters, snowplows and snowmobiles hunted for marooned victims of blizzard that swept the Rockies, northern Plains and upper Midwest.

Rail line kept running

CHICAGO—U.S. District Court Judge Frank McGarr Friday ordered the Rock Island Railroad to continue operations at least through May 15 and appointed Chicago attorney William Gibbons as trustee for the bankrupt line. The financially strapped railroad had previously said it would not accept freight orders beyond April 12. In another action, the Regional Transportation Authority Friday approved an $840,000 emergency grant to keep the Rock Island's Chicago area commuter trains running.

Seized envoy freed in trade

PARIS — Nationalist Somali guerrillas released kidnapped French ambassador Jean Guery Friday, exchanging him in South Yemen for two political prisoners and 19 gold bars worth $100,000, government officials said. The Somali ambassador to France, Mohamed Omar Giama, served as a volunteer hostage and accompanied the kidnappers and Guery during the exchange at the airfield of Aden, capital of South Yemen, the Iraqi news agency said in Beirut. The 57-year-old Guery was kidnapped Sunday in Mogadishu, the Somali capital, and held for five days and a few hours by three guerrillas of a movement aimed at gaining independence for the French territory of Afars and Issas, once known as French Somalia, adjacent to the Somali republic.

Maoists outlawed

LISBON—Portugal's ruling Revolutionary Council outlawed the extreme left-wing Maoist party Friday and decreed stiff penalties for anyone involved in political violence in campaigning for the April 25 election. The Maoists, who have a strong influence in Portugal's high schools and universities, were the first political party to be banned since the military took power in a coup nearly a year ago.

Antitrust setback

NEW YORK—Telex Corp.'s petition for a rehearing of the judgment which reversed Telex's antitrust victory against International Business Machines has been denied by the U.S. 10th Court of Appeals in Denver, Colo., IBM said Friday. Both Telex's request for a rehearing by the three-judge panel which rendered the verdict and for a hearing by the entire appeals court bench were denied late Thursday, according to a spokesman for IBM. Telex had won a $260 million antitrust judgment against IBM in the Utah district court.

Convincing convict

TYLER, Tex. — A convicted police killer who broke out of jail with four other inmates Friday convinced two officers he was a vagrant and they drove him to the edge of town and let him go. Within hours officers using bloodhounds began a search of the piney woods of East Texas for police killer Thomas Walter Shaw, 38, and two other escapees who took a cab 100 miles to Dallas. Accused shotgun slayer Edward Elton Corley was arrested in the afternoon in Tyler as he tried to break into a residence. Jimmy Wayne Nanny, 26, was picked up with Shaw at a Tyler convenience store, but police held Nanny for possession of narcotics, not knowing he had just escaped from jail. Shaw told those officers he was a vagrant on his way through town and they gave him a ride to a highway north of the city and let him go.

Newborns die in fire

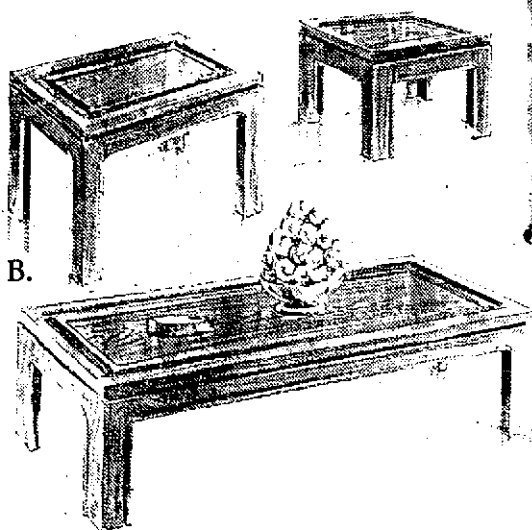

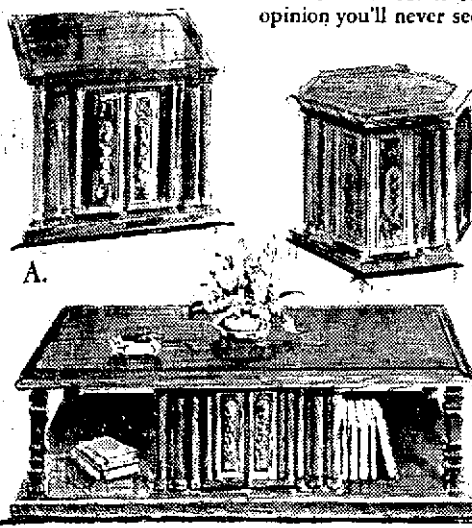

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia — A flash fire snuffed out the lives of 24 newborn babies in a hospital maternity ward Friday, touching off wild scenes of anguish among parents and relatives. One man who lost an infant son wailed outside the hospital, "For so many years we had waited for this child. We finally had him...for a total of three days." Officials said the fire in the Rijeka hospital was caused by human error and old, faulty wiring. In addition to those killed, four other babies were in critical condition. The roaring blaze sapped oxygen in the room and in the incubators.

Trade war threat

ROME — Italy Friday threatened a trade war against French farm exports unless France ends a boycott of Italian wines. It asked the European Common Market to step in before matters get out of hand. Foreign Minister Mariano Rumor summoned new French Ambassador Jean Puaux, who delivered his credentials only 15 days ago, to complain about French farmers' demonstrations which have prevented the unloading of Italian wine in French ports. At the same time, the Italian government lodged an official complaint against France with the Common Market's Economic Commission, demanding damage payments for wine exporters whose wares were turned back. The wine war broke out because of overproduction in both Italy and France which has led Common Market officials to consider selling 26.4 million gallons of wine at a loss to the Soviet Union.

Hahn bid rejected again Smog-device halt denied

Associated Press

Superior Court Judge Harry Hupp refused a county supervisor's request Friday to halt enforcement of the controversial NOx smog device law in six Southern California counties.

It was the second time in eight days that Hupp denied such an effort by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, who contends the $35 device is a "ripoff" and that enforcement by the California Highway Patrol is unconstitutionally discriminatory because it is limited to just the six counties.

The devices — which are designed to eliminate oxides of nitrogen (NOx) from exhaust fumes — are presently required on about 1.8 million 1966-70 cars in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, Ventura and Santa Barbara counties.

However on Thursday, the highway patrol announced it would issue only warnings instead of citations to motorists not equipped with the devices until the Legislature decides next week whether to repeal or retain the law.

The highway patrol's decision to suspend ticketing followed a Santa Barbara judge's lifting of a week-long court ban on CHP ticketing imposed March 19. For 15 days prior to the ban, the patrol had been issuing 80 to 100 tickets a day.

A bill to repeal the law requiring the devices is expected to be debated in the state Assembly April 3. The Senate has already passed a repeal measure.

In turning down Hahn's request for an injunction Friday, Hupp said, "The court rejects the notion which seems to underlie this litigation that the court may declare unconstitutional an act of the Legislature if the judge handling the case believes that the litigation is unwise."

County Counsel James Dexter Clark argued that the installation program was arbitrary and unconstitutional and that the CHP's announcement that it would issue only warnings did not really change the situation.

"The issuing of warnings is still enforcement because compliance with the NOx installation schedule is required by the warning within a specified time," Clark said.

Schmaltz shrine

I understand that pianist Liberace is opening his Hollywood home as a museum for the public. Whom do I contact to take a group up there? C.C., Long Beach.

Tours of the $1 million Hollywood Hills mansion must be arranged through Star Line Sightseeing Tours, 6854 Hollywood Blvd., Los Angeles. You can call them at 463-3131 to make reservations. Tours leave from the Star Line office every half hour between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. daily except Wednesday. The tour lasts two hours and visitors are taken to and from the mansion by limousine. Admission fee is $5.90 for adults and $2.90 for children under 12. Proceeds from the tours will go to the Liberace Foundation for the development of performing talent, according to Liberace. Visitors will be able to see his antiques, piano-shaped swimming pool, a pipe organ, his collection of 580 miniature pianos and will be free to wander about the house. It's not likely you'll see the grinning, sequin-clad performer himself, however, for he owns two other impressive dwellings in Palm Springs where he spends most of his free time.

Coat tale

About three years ago I bought a set of Miracle Maid cookware manufactured by the West Bend Co. The cookware has a black coating on it called Gem Coat which is guaranteed against chipping and peeling. This coating has worn off the inside of two of the saucepans. I would like to know what this Gem Coat consists of and if it could have harmed my family. That coating either went down the drain or down in our stomachs. L.L.P., Cerritos.

Gem Coat is somewhat of a misnomer, according to a spokesman for the West Bend Co. in West Bend, Wisc., for the pans are not actually coated with a separate substance. They are put through a process which causes a change in the molecular structure of the aluminum surface, turning it black, and the Food and Drug Administration has encountered no health hazards connected with aluminum utensils. The West Bend spokesman said the company will replace pans whose black interiors are worn away.

Out of shape

Can Action Line tell me if there is any way to straighten out a warped stereo record? G.C., Long Beach.

A quality control engineer for Capitol Records suggested that you place the records between plates of glass, cover the glass with a pile of books, and leave it this way for about a week. The glass, which has no texture, will prevent the weight of the books from damaging the record's grooves. He added that this system doesn't always work. Since a warped record also may have damaged grooves, your records still may not play properly even if you manage to straighten them out. Some individuals heat the record first before applying weight, but the Capitol engineer said experts discourage this practice because the amount of heat is difficult to control and it may cause additional damage to the grooves. Records always should be stored in a vertical position away from direct sunlight or heat.

Rich food

I would like to know how many calories are in an avocado. C.Z., Bellflower.

There are about 264 calories in an average avocado, according to the California Avocado Advisory Board in Newport Beach. The semi-tropical fruit is high in vitamin A, iron and vitamin E and contains no cholesterol. The avocado, a member of the laurel family, is a native American. The early Spanish explorers described avocados in reports of their voyages to the new world.

REACTION

Regarding your item on why the city golf courses are in such poor condition, placing the blame on vandals and fungus growth is ridiculous. I am convinced that bungled greenskeeping did the job. I have been playing the city courses for 10 years and have never seen them in poorer condition. If the Recreation Department explanation is correct, how did Lakewood Country Club and Old Ranch manage to avoid these problems and maintain their courses in their present beautiful condition. You are the victim of a public relations snow job. How the taxpayers can continue to put up with this situation is beyond me. El Dorado Park was so severely damaged that three greens needed to be completely rebuilt and a number of others are all but unplayable now due to poor repair. I think the public deserves a more complete expose of just how the Park Department has blown the job. M.B., Los Alamitos.

Trio held; bank holdup plan cited

U.S. Treasury agents and Long Beach police Friday arrested two men and a woman who, officers claim, were preparing to rob a Naples bank.

Police said that while they don't know how many past crimes may be tied to the trio, the three are suspected of robbing several banks in Long Beach and nearby towns. All three were booked on a charge of conspiracy to commit bank robbery.

Officers said they grabbed the three—both men armed with handguns and wearing disguises—as they left their residence at 520 Pleasant St. Friday.

One suspect, identified as Jeffrey Lyle Rose, 28, was jailed on a federal warrant for a counterfeit charge, and was held in lieu of $200,000 bail. He also was booked on charges of an ex-felon carrying a gun and conspiracy to commit bank robbery.

A second suspect, whom police identified as Gathel Ammon Beaton, 31, a parolee from a bank robbery conviction in the state of Washington, was booked on the conspiracy and gun-carrying charges.

Their female companion, Lucia Lyndale Kay, 28, was booked on the conspiracy charge alone.

Long Beach narcotics Officer Ron Dvorak said police believed the three were on their way to rob a Naples branch of Security Pacific Bank when police collared them in the alley behind their home around noon.

A camper truck they had borrowed from a friend was found parked near the bank, he said.

Beaton was the first of the three to be arrested. Officers who had been watching the house since 9 a.m. took Beaton into custody at 11:40 a.m., as he entered a car in the alley.

Dvorak said Beaton was wearing two sets of clothes, rubber gloves, a wig and false beard, and carried a .45 caliber automatic.

The other two were arrested 25 minutes later as they drove to the end of the alley in a different car. Dvorak said Rose also wore two sets of clothes, a false beard and wig, and carried a .38 caliber revolver.

A search of the trio's house turned up a handgun, shotguns, rifles, stereos and tape recorders and an ounce of heroin, but no large amount of cash, police said.

Dvorak said Treasury agents had been seeking Rose for several months, and local officers were notified of the investigation after federal agents verified that he was in Long Beach.

Two bogus check suspects seized

Two men with five counterfeit cashier's checks in their possession were arrested in the parking lot of a supermarket at 36th Street and Atlantic Avenue Friday.

Earlier, police said, they had attempted to pass one of the checks at the North Long Beach Office of the Auto Club of Southern California. They weren't successful, officers said, but on Feb. 26 they were able to exchange two of the checks—for $1,000 each—at the Hollywood and La Habra offices of the auto club for travelers' checks.

Edward Kornstin, 31, of Altadena, and Ronald Stevens, 38, were booked on charges of possession of completed stolen checks, attempted passing of forged documents and forgery.

Police said the two acquired a valid cashier's check made out to the auto club and managed to make—or acquire—copies on which they could fill in the amount.

The checks in their possession when they were arrested were for $1,884.73 each.

When the La Habra office discovered the check it received was "a phony," police said, it notified area police departments and auto club offices and set in motion a chain of events that led to their arrest. They were taken in custody by Officers R. A. Granby and G. O. Denham.

Bomb scare at strikers' office

A ticking package that an official of the striking International Association of Machinists found on his desk triggered a bomb scare at the IAM's office near Torrance Friday morning, but it proved to contain only an alarm clock when sheriff's bomb squad deputies froze it and opened it.

John Cummings, business agent of the union's Lodge 720, reported that he found the small box, wrapped in brown paper and addressed to him, in his office when he unlocked his door about 10:30 a.m.

He immediately carried it to the parking lot and then telephoned Carson sheriff's station.

The bomb squad applied a freezing spray from a liquid-nitrogen tank and opened it.

How the box, which did not come through the mails, was placed in Cummings' locked office is a mystery, said Leonard Loomis, assistant directing business representative.

Nixon's legal bill: $297,294

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon's Washington lawyers have run up $297,294.60 in legal bills so far, primarily for his effort to keep control of his presidential tapes and papers, says Rabbi Baruch Korff.

Korff, Nixon's fund-raiser, disclosed the figure in reporting Thursday that public contributions have paid nearly half those bills, $145,000, so far.

KORFF said the lawyers estimate the total bill, barring any unforeseen new legal action, will be between $350,000 and $400,000.

He said most of that is for handling Nixon's two major efforts, and the complex of cross suits connected with them, to get control of his presidential papers.

Nixon is suing for enforcement of an agreement signed with President Ford's advisers last Sept. 7 turning the tapes and papers over to him and storing them near San Clemente.

He also is challenging the constitutionality of the law passed by Congress last year directing the government to take possession of the tapes and papers and not let them out of the Washington area.

The legal action is being handled in Washington by lawyer Herbert J. Miller Jr. and his firm of Miller, Cassidy, Larroca and Lewin.

KORFF made a $25,000 payment Wednesday to the firm from public contributions to his U.S. Citizens Congress, which is raising funds for Nixon's expenses. Korff said contributions sent to San Clemente are relayed to the fund.

He said he hopes to pay another $55,000 next month with the help of fund-raising appearances in Dallas and said he expects to pay the full $350,000 to $400,000 before Labor Day.

Butterfield 'was set to quit in '74'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Alexander Butterfield said Friday his resignation as federal aviation administrator was "in the mill early last fall" and was not connected to recent criticism of air safety.

Butterfield, the former White House aide who revealed Richard Nixon's tape recording system during the Watergate investigations, announced Tuesday he was leaving the FAA effective March 31.

ASKED if President Ford had requested his resignation, Butterfield refused to deny the report but would not confirm it.

Although Butterfield refused to answer questions about Watergate, he told reporters he had "absolutely no regrets" about his disclosure July 16, 1973, of the existence of the Watergate tapes.

"There's only one kind of truth," said Butterfield of his testimony to the Senate Watergate committee.

Washington sources cited a feud with former Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar and criticism over the FAA's air safety performance as the primary reasons for Butterfield's resignation.

Butterfield, in a speech to the Commonwealth Club, said his successor would be fortunate to work with new Secretary of Transportation William T. Coleman Jr., whom he called "a man of considerable competence and stature."

"PLANS for my departure from the administration were in the mill early last fall, long before current aviation safety issues were being given front page priority," said Butterfield. He said he had known about it that long because of "friends in the White House."

When Butterfield announced his resignation, Ford said he accepted it with "sincere regret."

Butterfield told reporters: "My name is more associated with the other administration and Watergate. He wants to put the Ford stamp on his cabinet."

Butterfield proposed that in the future the FAA administrator should serve a fixed term "rather than at the pleasure of the president." Butterfield was appointed to the post two years ago by Nixon.

He defended the FAA's safety effectiveness and complained that the news media have only presented the "bad news."

—UPI

Russ sunken sub suspect gives up

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Donald R. Woolbright, who was sought in connection with a burglary and attempted ransom of documents which reportedly deal with a contract between Howard Hughes and the Central Intelligence Agency to recover a sunken Soviet submarine, surrendered to county police Friday.

Woolbright, 34, appeared before a county magistrate and was freed on $12,500 bond.

Federal authorities in St. Louis said Woolbright had negotiated with them Friday afternoon before he decided to surrender to St. Louis County authorities.

Woolbright's attorney, Norman S. London, said his client had refused to waive extradition to California.

THE LOS Angeles Times has said Woolbright was named in a secret indictment returned March 18 by a Los Angeles county grand jury which was investigating the June 5, 1974, burglary at Hughes' Summa Corp.

Informed of Woolbright's surrender, Los Angeles County Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch said, "This by no means ends our investigation."

"We do not regard the matter as closed," Busch said. "We'll explore all the necessary avenues."

In St. Louis, Federal Magistrate William S. Bahn said Woolbright was charged in the indictment with attempting to extort $1 million from the Hughes Corp. for return of documents which pertained to the submarine contract.

Woolbright was arrested in St. Louis on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

St. Louis County Magistrate Dennis Quillen set bond on the fugitive charge and ordered Woolbright appear before him again on April 28.

The FBI and police said they learned last week that Woolbright might be in the St. Louis area and living in nearby St. Charles.

THE CONTRACT between billionaire reclusive Hughes and the CIA was disclosed in detail last week.

The Hughes-owned mining ship Glomar Explorer, under a contract with the CIA, recovered part of a Soviet submarine which sank northwest of Hawaii in 1968.

Military sources have said the primary goal of the recovery operation was to get Soviet code books and atomic warhead missiles. Critics said the Soviet materials were so outdated they would be of little use to U.S. intelligence today, but defenders said much could be learned by studying the level of Soviet development at the time the sub sank.

The cost of Operation Jennifer, as the project was known, was estimated at $350,000 million.

VIP gift law said inadequate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1966 law regulating foreigners' gifts to presidents, members of Congress and federal employees is inadequate and should be strengthened, the General Accounting Office said Friday.

The law specifies that gifts over $50 in value from "kings, princes or foreign states" must become the property of the government and placed under the control of the State Department's chief of protocol. But the GAO said the protocol office cannot effectively administer the law as now written.

"Neither the act nor its regulations require that gifts be reported within a specific time, nor is there an effective penalty for noncompliance," the GAO reported to Congress.

The law covers presidents, vice presidents, members of Congress and federal employees, civilian and military. It requires reporting of gifts of more than "minimal value," but leaves to the recipient to say what the gifts' value is.

"A need exists to amend the Foreign Gifts and Decorations Act to provide the basis for adequately implementing the constitutional intent to control the impact of gifts given by foreign governments," the GAO said. "A need exists for each branch of the government to establish separate arrangements to see that the statute is followed."

Chattooga shoo shoo River ban 'riles folks'

WALHALLA, S.C. (UPI) — Nineteen persons have died on the wild Chattooga River trying to match the canoe feats of the movie "Deliverance," which was filmed there, and the U.S. Forest Service aims to put a stop to the daredevilry.

Forest Ranger Bill Craig said the movie has been a major source of annoyance to longtime residents along the river, which separates Georgia from South Carolina.

"The movie really riled a lot of the local folks up. It pictured them as something of a bumpkin-type person which of course is just untrue as it can be," Craig said. "It attracted a bunch of people that felt they had to test themselves against the river."

"People just do not realize how rugged the river is."

"The river has six to eight-foot straight drops," Craig said, "which I don't think I'll ever be competent enough to take in a canoe."

Local residents who have fished, swam and boated in the river all their lives are angered by the Forest Service plan to limit access to the Chattooga, which Congress has designated one of the nation's seven "wild and scenic rivers."

The Forest Service has imposed strict regulations in an attempt to cut down the deaths and injuries on the river. All persons must wear lifejackets and persons in kayak-type craft must wear helmets to protect their heads in case they roll over.

But it is the Forest Service's efforts to protect the river which have done the most to upset local residents. A corridor one-fourth of a mile wide is being set up on each side of the river in which no development or permanent improvements can be made. Authorization for the corridor comes from Congress.

The Forest Service also is blocking roads leading to the river. Ultimately there will be only four ways to reach it.

The Oconee County Council has approved a resolution calling for the lifting of federal regulations. Councilman Herchel

Moore said the restrictions discriminate mostly against the people who were born and reared near the river.

"We are not claiming the river for ourselves but it is ending up that no one can use the river unless they want to go out there in boats and canoes," he said.

Moore said persons owning property near the river will be unable to use that land, much of which has stayed in families for generations.

"The movie didn't do Oconee County any good at all," he said. "It was very inappropriate for our section and it has brought the river to the attention of a lot of people."

U.S. suit hits Alabama jails

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department sought Friday to charge officials of all 232 county and municipal jails in Alabama with violating the constitutional rights of prisoners.

Through a motion filed at U.S. District Court in Montgomery, the department asked to be named as a plaintiff in a case already brought privately by a federal prisoner against the Houston County jail.

While supporting that prisoner's complaints, the department asked that the suit be broadened to include all the state's municipal and county jails as defendants.

Along with authorities at those jails, the complaint is aimed at the state board of health, the board of corrections and the state fire marshal.

The department's action was announced by Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi.

The proposed suit claims the jails have violated the rights of prisoners by failing to:

— Protect them from harm by maintaining staff insufficient in size and training.

— Provide safe and sanitary conditions.

— Offer adequate medical care through dependence on nonmedical personnel and by not making hospital care available when necessary.

The Justice Department also said authorities had imposed unfair disciplinary measures, including confining inmates to cells as small as two-feet square.

Also cited were limitations on exercise and recreation and "arbitrary and unreasonable" visitation rules.

The proposed suit asked the court to prohibit Alabama authorities from continuing the alleged unconstitutional practices and to set statewide standards for the operation of all 232 facilities.

Asst. Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger, head of the Civil Rights Division, said it was the first time the department had moved against all of a state's city and county jails.

Between 3,300 and 4,000 inmates are confined in the Alabama jails on any given day, most of them awaiting trial, the department said. The department argued that the issue was a matter for the federal courts because the inmates include several federal prisoners awaiting trial and also because many of the jails have received financial help from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The original lawsuit was filed by inmate Ronald Paul Adams of the Houston County Jail in southeast Alabama. His suit claimed that the jail was unsanitary.

The federal court appointed U.S. Atty. Ira DeMent of Montgomery to represent Adams, and it was DeMent who filed the papers Friday seeking to expand the suit to cover all jails.

'Killer hideout' cleanup sought

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — The ski resorts of Vermont long have been the winter playground of the wealthy. The hillsides and sleepy towns have been a haven for persons seeking peace and quiet. Communes dot the area.

But now, professional killers — hired by organized crime syndicates — use the state to hide out after carrying out contract "hits" in other states, according to state Atty. Gen. M. Jerome Diamond.

Vermont is used as "a seasonal residence by professional hit men — a cooling off spot," he said. The attorney general wants a $242,000 federal grant to finance a war on organized crime. He would use the money to buy sophisticated surveillance equipment, including a "de-bugger," a briefcase style tape recorder and transmitter, video equipment, cameras equipped with long-range lenses for use at night and a disguised surveillance truck.

While not going into specifics, he said three persons wanted in Rhode Island for the murder of witnesses had been living in Brattleboro, Vt., but fled just as police were about to capture them.

Diamond, who was Windham County state's attorney in Brattleboro before his election as attorney general last fall, did not elaborate on his "hit man hideout" charges. But he cited the discovery several years ago of "a still unidentified homicide victim in the Northeast Kingdom who bore all the marks of a gangland slaying."

State authorities also are investigating alleged race fixing and prostitution at Vermont's only parimutual race track, Green Mountain Park.

Diamond made the statements on professional killers while asking the governor's Justice Commission for permission to apply for the federal crime-fighting grant. The commission told Diamond to apply for the federal aid, but agreed that a special committee should be established to oversee the operation.

"For years law enforcement agencies have been aware of the presence at the Green Mountain Race-track in Pownal of organized crime figures with ties to the Rhode Island family," Diamond said.

He said the Public Safety Department and the State Racing Commission are investigating alleged betting irregularities at the track and have evidence of "the presence of a prostitution ring operated at the racetrack by people out of the Albany, N.Y., area."

Other areas Diamond wants to investigate are possible bid-rigging in the letting of municipal and state contracts, bribery and pay-offs in the state's environmental and land development control programs, traffic in stolen goods, gambling and the invasion of legitimate businesses.

Cheese, butter due to go up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail prices of cheese and butter are expected to climb further as the result of a dairy price support action announced Friday by the Agriculture Department.

If passed along fully to consumers, the price support action will add two cents a pound to the cost of cheese and one and-a-quarter cents to butter prices.

Effective April 1, the department said, the government's purchase price of surplus cheddar cheese will be 79½ cents per pound, up two cents from a rate set on Jan. 4. The butter support will rise 1½ cents to a new minimum of 70½ cents per pound.

"The higher prices announced today are necessary because manufacturing costs, including packaging, have risen substantially and prices paid farmers for milk were below the announced support price in January and February," the announcement said.

On Jan. 4, the department raised the basic support price of manufacturing-grade milk used to make cheese, butter and other products to $7.24 per 100 pounds from $6.57 which had been in effect since last spring.

No direct federal payments are made to dairy farmers under the system. But when farm milk prices sag, the department is supposed to buy surplus products to keep the milk price from dropping below the support level.

Panel to probe FDA 'harassment'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger appointed a six-person panel Friday to investigate charges that the Food and Drug Administration harassed employees who tried to block approval of new drugs they felt were unsafe.

Weinberger said the panel will report back to him by the end of the year in its investigation into the FDA drug approval and disapproval process, and the allegation raised in Senate hearings last year by agency medical officers who review applications from pharmaceutical firms.

Appearing under subpoenas last August, 11 present and former FDA scientists testified before the Senate Health subcommittee that they frequently were harassed or reassigned when they advised against approving new drugs, but never when they recommended approval.

Later the same month, Weinberger announced plans to name a committee composed of four government and three non-government officials to look into what he called "disturbing charges."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who chaired the subcommittee during the hearings, objected to the makeup of the first proposed panel because he said it had the appearance of a conflict of interest.

The current FDA commissioner, Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt, has repeatedly denied that his agency has a "dual standard" in dealing with employees reviewing drug applications. His own investigation into the allegations has been hampered by a federal law which bars the attorney representing the employees from obtaining access to the massive scientific data submitted by drug companies in their applications for federal approval to market new pharmaceuticals.

The controversy revolves around the question of whether layers of FDA scientists and administrators should review the applications, as at present, or whether a single medical officer should have the primary responsibility for reviewing an application as was the case before former FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards headed the agency.

Weinberger has expressed concern that the charges "put at risk the public and professional credibility of the FDA, the morale of thousands of dedicated FDA employees and, in fact, threaten the entire system now used by FDA to meet the complicated demands of modern drug review."

In contrast to an earlier proposal, the panel will have only one federal employee.

Members of the panel are Dr. Allen Astin, director emeritus of the National Bureau of Standards;

Dr. Thomas C. Chalmers, president and dean of the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine; Marsha Cohen, an attorney with Consumers Union; Norman Dorsen, general counsel of the American Civil Liberties Union and law professor at New York University; Alanson W. Wilcox, former HEW general counsel; and Dr. David Rall, director of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences.

Potato farmers protest prices

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — An estimated 60,000 pounds of Idaho potatoes were given away Friday on the steps of the Idaho Capitol by growers protesting low prices.

Protest organizer Del Ray Holm said the growers were "calling attention that although the farmer is getting only about $1.25 a hundred-weight for No. 1 potatoes, they are being sold for 25 cents a pound in Salt Lake City grocery stores."

Holm said farmers in eastern Idaho are disposing of about two million pounds of potatoes a day, "either by feeding them to cattle or dumping out on the desert."

The farmers originally had planned to burn 300 truckloads of potatoes in eastern Idaho this week-end to dramatize their plight. But Gov. Cecil D.

Andrus urged them to change their plans and give away the potatoes to needy persons.

Several hundred persons lined up in subfreezing weather with burlap sacks, cardboard boxes, garbage cans and grocery shopping carts to haul away the free potatoes. One woman had nine cardboard boxes, each of which would hold about 100 pounds of potatoes.

Andrus told Holm he agreed with the farmers that the federal government should have taken steps to help the potato surplus by including dehydrated potatoes in the Food for Peace program to help starving thousands in Asia and Africa. The administration has designated only 150,000 pounds of potatoes for the program on an experimental basis.

OK gives 'brown bag set' wings

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The Civil Aeronautics Board gave National Airlines the go-ahead Friday for a "no frills" service that will slash many fares 35 percent for passengers willing to forego meals and liquor, fly week days, and buy tickets a week in advance.

The plan, proposed by three other airlines with varying wrinkles, will go into effect April 14 on National, and, if the expected CAB approval is forthcoming, on other lines, too.

The fare from New York to Miami will drop to $81 from the current $98 and $75 for coach and night coach. A one-way flight from Miami to Los Angeles will cost $103.70, under the "no frills" scheme, instead of $169.44.

The new austerity service is probably the most innovative of a growing number of marketing gambits devised to try to reverse the sharpest dip in air travel in this country since World War II. It bucks a pricing trend that, under pressure from soaring fuel costs in particular, has brought a 20 percent rise in domestic air fares in the last 16 months.

Still awaiting CAB decisions are proposals to revive the domestic youth fare (transatlantic youth fares were reinstated Thursday), to bring back family fares, and to offer a "cut-rate" fare for senior citizens.

The hope is that all the discounts will help fill up the rows and rows of seats now flying empty rather than divert travelers from higher-fare sections.

National will operate its scheme primarily on Boeing 747 and DC10 jumbo jets serving 32 markets. But the same prices will

FTC ends probe on condominiums

By WALTER RUGABER

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission has secretly voted to break off an 18-month national investigation of abuses in the sale and management of residential condominiums.

The action was especially important for consumers who already own condominiums.

The commission was widely regarded as their chief, perhaps their only, federal remedy for past arrangements that harm them still.

CONGRESS and the Department of Housing and Urban Development are considering new laws and regulations to cover future transactions. The commission has power to challenge unfair practices already engaged in.

EXCLUSIVE
N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

The commission's move was sharply criticized on Capitol Hill. A commission spokesman defended it on budgetary grounds and argued that the investigation had appeared to duplicate a study being conducted by the Housing Department.

He added that the agency would allow a member of its staff to keep up with the department's inquiry and, when it is finished this summer, might consider reopening its investigation.

The spokesman acknowledged, however, that the decision ruled out for now the possibility of developing broad rules governing industry activities or legal actions on specific issues.

THE condominium investigation came up Monday at a meeting on the commission's spending. The cutback was formally proposed by the chairman, Lewis A. Engman, who has cultivated a proconsumer image.

He prevailed on a 3-to-2 vote. Engman was supported by commissioners Mayo J. Thompson and Stephen A. Nye, in the minority were commissioners Paul Rand Dixon and Elizabeth M. Hanford.

The investigation was made public in a statement last July. A proposal to issue a second statement disclosing Monday's decision was turned down by the same three-member majority.

The secrecy was defended Friday on the ground that closing the investigation was relatively unimportant and that it would be disclosed anyway when the agency presents its new budget to Congress in a few months.

ENGMAN was not available directly but defended the majority view through a spokesman as "a smart decision to make in terms of the commission's over-all resources."

Critics argued, however, that even "on paper" the inquiry involved only six professional staff members and $1,200 in travel money annually. In fact, sources added, only two men and no money were involved.

By contrast, the commission's current budget is about $38 million. It employs about 700 lawyers and 100 economists.

Condominiums, which have grown increasingly popular in recent years, allow buyers to hold title to their own apartment units and share in common facilities such as elevators and swimming pools.

Many owners, especially in Florida, have signed agreements to lease facilities such as pools for as long as 99 years and to retain for long periods of time condominium managers often affiliated with the developers.

THESE arrangements called for monthly payments by each owner, and under a typical agreement the fees can be raised, sometimes substantially, to keep pace with inflation. Those on fixed incomes felt particularly threatened.

Underground comics sketch 'facts of life'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An explicit underground comic book teaches teen-agers the facts of life through the sexual misadventures of Fertile Fanny, Clarence Crabtree and Fat Freddy.

The creator of the sex education funnies says it may be unorthodox, but it's not pornographic.

"It's not intended to be really gross or anything, but there is nudity and open talk of premarital sex and living together," Lora Fountain said in an interview Friday. "It's a good way to get the message across about VD and birth control."

"Most other books on sex are formal, drier. Teen-agers don't read them," said Miss Fountain, a health educator at San Francisco General Hospital.

"But teen-agers often read comic books and nothing else, especially underground comics," she said.

The 32-page book, entitled "Incredible Facts of Life," starts with a brief story on sexual myths called "If it were true that..." It takes place in the Bunnyville VD clinic and features humanized rabbits who find out it's not true that taking the pill prevents VD or that once you've had the disease you can't get it again.

One of the longer narratives, by R. Crumb, is about Strawberry Fields and her old man, Buckwheat Florida Jr.

Strawberry is a frowzy, free loving flower child who is too lazy to take birth control pills. Soon she finds she is "preggers," as Crumb puts it.

She goes through panel after panel of horrendous treatment by Bucky, who knows all the quack methods of abortion, before she gets proper medical attention.

Fertile Fanny, drawn by Miss Fountain herself, is a character who gets pregnant because she isn't using effective birth control.

Trots and Bonnie deals with the need for pap smears to test for cervical cancer and Clarence Crabtree draws his name from the subject of his episode.

Miss Fountain, 30, said the book came out in December 1972 and has been circulated mostly through bookstores where other underground comics are sold.

She said some doctors' offices, hospitals and free clinics have ordered it, but that some health administrators find it "lacks dignity in treating the mysteries of sex."

Symphony displays muscle, lyricism

By DAVID LEVINSON
Staff Writer

The Los Angeles Philharmonic's concerts this week are an uncommon example of a prettily designed program executed with a mixture of muscle and lyricism.

Three works — two presented for the first time at the Philharmonic's Music Center concerts — make up the program. The two novelties are Dvorak's "The Wood Dove" and Charles Ives' "Symphony No. 2." The old standby — and the centerpiece of the concert — is Beethoven's first piano concerto. Alfred Brendel is the soloist.

There is a woody kinship between the Dvorak and the Ives that make them a wonderful frame for the intense, steely poetry in Brendel's performance of the Beethoven.

Zubin Mehta, back from conducting opera in Vienna, presided over the Dvorak without score Thursday. His manner was at once modern intellectual and old Bohemian. His concern for structure combined with his feeling for the literary nature of the tone poem, a kind of folk variation of the Tristan myth, to make of the work a lovely, vaulting arch.

Ives had clearly heard a lot of this kind of bosky 19th century music at the time he wrote his second symphony at the turn of the century — he and Dvorak were working on these pieces at the same time — and its influences, along with the structural influence of Brahms, are more immediately evident to an ordinary modern listener than they were to generations of conductors who ignored the piece totally. In another 25 years, I imagine, conductors will stop ignoring Ives' fourth symphony.

For all Ives' nose-thumbing dissonance, the second symphony today sounds tame and often even sweet — almost suited for those listeners with lily-pad ears that Ives rallied against so often. Mehta conducted with an occasional lack of Ivesian insouciance but with a tender appreciation of the symphony's prettiness.

The orchestra did its conductor, the composer and itself proud. Everything was in balance, the horns were sunny, the flutes were bright, and cellist Samuel Mayes played the gentlest and warmest of solos.

The audience took it all too seriously, I thought. Even Ives' quotations of "De Campdown Races," "Old Black Joe" and "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" brought only a few smiles — at least from those in the expensive seats. Up in the balconies where the music lovers gather, things may have been different.

Brendel's work was more readily appreciated, and it deserved the heavy applause it received. He captured all the brilliance of the first movement and the concluding rondo, all the lyricism of the largo. He made no more of this Mozartean work than is there, but what is there presented in perfect proportion is enough. Mehta's collaboration was exemplary, although the opening tutti was perhaps a shade modest. It looked backward to Mozart rather than forward to the tragic Beethoven to come.

In an encore — exceedingly rare at Philharmonic concerts — Brendel played the second of Schubert's "Moments musicaux." It is a small composition, but when played by an artist of Brendel's sensitivity its affecting song is as large in impact as anything in music.

HOLLYWOOD'S OTHER MEN. By Alex Barris. Barnes, $15.

There has been a spate of books about Gable, Gary Grant, and the rest of the big stars. Now Alex Barris does justice to the poor guys who always lost the gal to the Gables and the Grants-Ralph Bellamy, as the prototype of the losers; Don Ameche, Tony Randall, Gig Young, among them. It's a fascinating book about actors who may have lost out in the movie plot, but who were often better actors than the stars to whom they lost the girl.—N.

THE LOVING FRIENDS: A Portrait of Bloomsbury. By David Gadd. Harcourt, Brace Jovanovich, $6.95.

In the first quarter of this century some of the most brilliant Britons joined together in the social and literary circle known as the Bloomsbury Group (their activities centered around Bloomsbury Square, London). They were as diverse in their fields as they were in their sexual proclivities.

The critic and biographer Lytton Strachey was openly a homosexual; Novelist Virginia Woolf was a feminist and her husband Leonard Woolf a Socialist; Clive Bell was a champion of post-impressionism when that school of painting was still looked upon with disfavor; Virginia Woolf's sister Vanessa Bell, and Duncan Grant were post-impressionists; the great economic Maynard Keynes was a member of the group.

There have been a number of insiders' books on Bloomsbury; David Gadd gives us the first, dispassionate look from the outside and it is lively, full of new insights, and an invaluable study of these talented intellectual leaders.

SOUTH VIETNAMESE refugees from Hue and the northern provinces wait on the docks in Da Nang Friday for the Saigon government to evacuate them to the central coast area.

—UPI

It pays to be rich in Da Nang

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

DA NANG (AP) — Most of the teeming refugees in this endangered city would give their all to flee. But the rich who have more to give find it easier to get away.

The American airlift from Da Nang is financed by U.S. funds, and officials swear money has nothing to do with the distribution of free priority tickets for the evacuation flights.

But it takes money or connections to get to the airport, to get past guards at the gate and to get from the gate to the terminal.

A woman who owned a business managed to beg a free seat on a plane from an American and was able to get on board because she had another connection to get her past army guards at the airport gate.

Inside the airport, Vietnamese airmen with motorbikes were charging up to $3 for the three-minute ride to the terminal. That's about two to three days' wages for many Vietnamese.

On Friday, panicky refugees at the airport rioted when "the military started driving their families up to the plane in ambulances," said Ed

Daly, whose World Airways was chartered for the U.S. airlift. He said the airlift was suspended "until we get more mob control protection from the army."

Ordinary commercial fares from Da Nang to Saigon are normally less than $10, but sources say Air Vietnam tickets are being peddled for up to $300 — about 10 months' pay for a middle-level civil servant.

At least one employee of a company chartering rescue aircraft has been caught selling space on the ostensibly free flights for 100,000 piasters — about $138.

The refugees who gather early at Da Nang Airport hoping to fly out appear well-to-do. Many of them are well-clothed and their children well-fed. Some lug television sets, sewing machines, phonographs and electric fans. Nursing mothers carry full money belts and businessmen clutch satchels filled with cash.

So far, American and Vietnamese have evacuated less than 2,000 of the estimated half million refugees who have more than doubled the population of this northern city.

The first priority on the American flights goes to Vietnamese employees of American companies or the U.S. government and their families and to other Vietnamese who have good reason to fear retribution if they fall into Communist hands.

An American pilot who had one space left in his four-seat plane offered to take a needy Vietnamese. He expected to get a widow or an orphan, but instead he was approached by a burly provincial police captain packing a pistol on his hip.

"Come to think of it," the American said, "a widow or orphan probably would survive under the Communists, but that captain wouldn't."

Interference in probe of FBI agent denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department official denied a published report Friday night that FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley had tried to stop an investigation into the alleged bribing of an FBI agent by a reputed member of the Mafia.

The Washington Post reported that Kelley twice made unsuccessful attempts to stop the Justice Department probe. The newspaper said the department's investigation had been started after an initial FBI inquiry into the bribe allegation turned up no evidence against New York FBI agent Joseph Stabile.

HOWEVER, Justice Department spokesman Robert Havel said he had examined official memoranda between Kelley and Justice officials on the case and said: "I just can't interpret them as an attempt by Kelley to try to turn off this investigation."

Havel added that in the exchange of memoranda last December, Kelley said that whatever the FBI might do administratively in the case should have no influence on the subsequent investigation by the Criminal Division of Justice.

The Justice spokesman said Stabile is still with the FBI and currently assigned to the bureau's Boston office.

ACCORDING to The Post, Kelley initially asked high-ranking Justice officials in 1973 to call off the follow-up investigation by members of the federal organized crime strike force in Brooklyn on the grounds that the preceding FBI probe had found no violations of law.

The newspaper said Kelley also complained that the Justice investigation was hurting FBI morale. Subsequently, Henry E. Petersen, then chief of the Criminal Division, told the Brooklyn prosecutors of Kelley's attempts and informed Kelley that the investigation would continue, The Post said.

The account quoted Petersen as commenting recently: "There was a difference of opinion, and ultimately the opinion of the Criminal Division prevailed and the FBI acquiesced in that opinion."

THE reputed Mafia member, John Caputo, is scheduled to go on trial April 14 in Brooklyn on perjury charges unrelated to his alleged bribing of Stabile.

The Post said Caputo, when reached at his country home in Hawley, Pa., commented about the Stabile case: "I got nothing to do with this."

FORD TAX DECISION

But he said the President must weigh these objections against what Ford still feels is the need for a tax rebate. "We need the money and need it fast," he said.

The Treasury official said he disagrees with the argument that it would be difficult for Ford to veto the tax bill and explain it to the American people.

"He can point out what he sent up (to Congress) and what he got back are two different things," the official said. "It's a tough call and I don't envy the President."

While in Palm Springs over the weekend, the President will attend Easter Sunday church services at St. Margaret's Episcopal Cathedral.

HE AND Mrs. Ford will be staying at the home of businessman Fred Wilson, whom Ford has known for about 10 years. Wilson was the founder and now runs the Trans World Insurance Program. Nessen said that on previous visits to Palm Springs, Ford had been a guest at Wilson's home. But for this presidential visit, Ford will rent the premises from Wilson for $100 a day, Nessen said.

Ford plans to play golf at the vacation spot and engage in social activities with friends in Palm Springs. He also plans a number of business and speaking appearances in California during his nine-day trip.

EASTER PILGRIMAGE

to the Holy Land. He called on a fellow Franciscan, Father Godfrey — originally from Washington, D.C., but now living in Israel — to act as guide. It was Godfrey's seventh Good Friday walk along the Via Dolorosa.

With Godfrey in the lead, the Americans joined the other pilgrims slowly moving toward the Church of the Holy Sepulcher.

The Street of Sorrow is scarcely a thousand paces long from Pontius Pilate's judgment hall, where Jesus was sentenced, to Calvary, where He died.

The route follows a maze of narrow alleyways that bisect the heart of the old Arab city, passing countless souvenir stalls, open-air markets and leather goods shops. The faithful ignored the hawkers offering imitation cowboy hats "for $2 American, 12 Israeli pounds" or post cards showing all the Stations of the Cross.

A PEDDLER selling olive wood crucifixes complained the pilgrims "aren't spending much money. It must be the recession."

Airlift to Cambodia ordered reopened

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — American officials Saturday ordered the emergency airlift of arms, fuel and food to Cambodia reopened despite continued shelling of the airport and the inability of government troops to clear the "rocket belt" to the west and northwest.

At the Mekong River enclave of Neak Luong, government defenders suffered another setback during the pre-dawn hours when Communist-led insurgents cut a road between the town and an outpost to the north.

But on the plus side for the government, military sources said government navy gunships destroyed an invasion force of insurgents staging an attack from the river.

On the east bank of the Mekong opposite Phnom Penh, insurgents were still in possession of between 500 and 800 yards of riverfront about 2.4 miles from the capital.

One skirmish was reported in the area Friday night, and four battalions of government paratroopers were moved in to attempt to clear the area.

One field report said an insurgent column of up to 5,000 troops was also moving into the area from rebel-held territory northeast of the capital.

Officials said the emergency airlift keeping the capital alive was ordered resumed this morning despite the failure of government troops to move forward Friday in their attempt to retake Tuol Leap village six miles west of the airfield.

Takeshi Nakamura, counselor at the Japanese Embassy in Phnom Penh, flew to Tokyo Friday and told the Kyodo news agency Cambodian leaders were planning to flee the capital and surrender it unconditionally.

"They are steeling themselves for an unconditional surrender to the Liberation Forces," Nakamura said.

Government forces counterattacked at several points on the Phnom Penh defense perimeter and also near the airport in a bid to break out of the tightening ring around the capital, but they had scant success.

Cambodian Air Force prop-driven T28 bombers dropped load after load of bombs on rebel positions while residents of Phnom Penh watched from the west bank of the river.

Field reports said that as many as 5,000 rebel troops were advancing on Phnom Penh from the northeast and had set up headquarters 12 miles from the capital.

At Pochentong, around 80 rounds of 105mm artillery fire and 107mm rockets blasted the airport, killing two persons, wounding 10 others, and forcing suspension of the U.S. airlift at 10 a.m., after only three C130 transports had landed with fuel and ammunition.

The shelling came from an area six miles north of the airstrip given up by government troops earlier this week.

The military sources said government troops trying to retake that area had minimal success, advancing only 800 yards.

To the north of the capital, a multibrigade government operation was ordered to drive the insurgents back from their positions four miles from the capital's defense perimeter east of Highway 5.

Military sources said government troops made little progress.

communications difficult, and street battles broke out between soldiers and refugees who were looting or mobbing every conceivable type of transportation to flee the city.

Military sources said Communist troops within three miles of Da Nang fired at least 70 rocket and mortar rounds into the city late Friday and early today. The refugee airlift was halted earlier in the day.

Da Nang has a normal population of about half a million. Its population has been swelled by about one million refugees from other areas in northern South Vietnam abandoned by government forces this month.

Da Nang had been surrounded by Communist troops to the north, west and south—the South China Sea lies to the east. But the Communists did not open fire on Da Nang itself until after the capture Friday of the provincial capital of Hoi An, 15 miles to the south.

IN THE south, the growing Communist offensive swept up a 12th South Vietnamese province 90 miles northeast of Saigon.

The South Vietnamese command said the province of Lam Dong and its capital Boa Loc just below the Central Highlands fell to a massive two-hour Communist artillery and infantry assault Friday.

The flight from Da Nang in the north reached such panic proportions earlier Friday that several of the 100,000 refugees mobbing the airport tried to cling to the landing gear of getaway planes.

The airlift was halted until today in the hope that South Vietnamese marines could restore order by then with barbed-wire fences and sandbag barricades.

Thousands of other refugees left by ship in chaotic scenes in the harbor. Some 10,000 persons sailed on the American freighter Pioneer while 8,000 others were being loaded aboard a U.S. Navy vessel, the USS Miller, which was manned by a civilian crew.

Cambodia aid error 'off' $4.6 million, GAO finds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department acknowledged Friday that it overstated by about $4.6 million the amount of Cambodian aid funds which it claims remained overlooked and uncommitted from last year.

That reduced the additional amount available to $16.9 million. The Pentagon said that of this amount about $15 million worth of ammunition already has been delivered.

The Pentagon's acknowledgement came after the General Accounting Office reported that the $21.5 million originally claimed as being available because of a bookkeeping foul-up last year actually amounted only to $16.9 million.

In explanation, the Pentagon said it had found that the Army, which manages much of the ammunition supply to Cambodia, was still carrying on its books $4.6 million in rockets and other ammunition components which actually had been transferred to air munitions in May 1974.

GAO auditors, in a report to Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., also said the Defense Department had used inconsistent accounting, billing and pricing procedures to come up with the additional military aid for Cambodia.

The Defense Department said March 17 it had found Cambodia was overcharged for weapons delivered in fiscal year 1974, making a $21.5 million credit available to supplement the $275 million authorized by Congress for the current fiscal year.

Congress recessed for Easter March 26 without acting on President Ford's request for $222 million additional arms aid for Cambodia for the next three months.

Pearson said the GAO suggested that Congress may wish to state specifically in any authorizing legislation that the additional aid being supplied to Cambodia by the Pentagon be considered a part of any supplemental aid approved.

"I endorse this recommendation," Pearson said.

Polliwog business washed up

Entrepreneur Dick Berry, 10, says he's considering another line of work, or maybe another line of merchandise, since his polliwogs aren't selling too well. Young Berry, who set up shop at Second Street and Roycroft Avenue in Belmont Shore, says there's simply not a large market for the wriggly little creatures. Maybe some of the fascination of owning a polliwog (otherwise-known as a tadpole) and watching it grow into a frog has left the city—not to be enjoyed by youngsters of the 1970s who live in a concrete-bound society. Or maybe, in these recession-ridden times, other freckle-faced boys have discovered it's cheaper—and more fun—to catch their own in nearby sloughs.

Formalized labor-city relations to be urged

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

A program in which the City of Long Beach, in consultation with employee groups, would develop a "more formal manner" of handling its employer-employee relations will be recommended Tuesday to the City Council.

The recommendation by City Manager John R. Mansell is part of a report, requested by the Council, on the city's labor relations program under the state's Meyers-Milias-Brown Act.

The Council request was stimulated by a communication asking formal recognition of the Service Employees International Union Local 660, AFL-CIO, City Division.

Since 1968, when the Brown Act was amended to become the Meyers-Milias-Brown Act, increased activity by "traditional" employee organizations has required a closer liaison between the city and employee groups to reflect the bilateral intent of the act's provisions, Mansell said.

At the same time, the city manager said, outside unions began "to show a real interest" in encouraging public employees to join their particular organizations for representation purposes.

Without establishing a formal mechanism, Mansell said, the city has met and conferred with the Long Beach Police Officers Association, Long Beach Fire Fighters Association, Long Beach City Employees Association and its subdivisions: the Municipal Engineering Association, Lifeguards Association and Clerical Association.

In addition, he said, the city has consulted with Local 112 of the American Federation of State County and Municipal Employees, Teamsters Local 572, Local 1292 of AFSCME, California Nurses Association and Local 11 of International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. City administrators also have met frequently with individual employees or groups of employees in specific job classifications.

The city manager said the "evolution toward formalization is becoming readily apparent" in Long Beach, as well as on state and federal level, where legislation on labor law for public employees has been introduced.

"Since the trend for formal recognition is clear in the actions of both internal city employee organizations and external unions, it is clear that the time is appropriate for the city to address itself to the task of developing a mechanism which is more specific than the general provisions of the MMB Act," Mansell said.

He said contractual arrangements have been made with a private firm to provide consulting services, and he recommended that the City Council ask City Atty. Leonard Putnam to prepare, "as expeditiously as possible," a draft of an employer-employee relations resolution.

Library's film service resumes after brief lapse

The film service of the Long Beach Public Library has resumed operation after being closed temporarily because of a breakdown in the film-inspection equipment, City Librarian Frances Henselman said Friday.

The service, available at the Main Library, 4500 E. Atherton St., has more than 950 films available for loan. It is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Mrs. Henselman said the service has obtained a new electronic film-inspection machine, developed by Research Technology Inc. of Skokie, Ill., which can inspect film at the rate of 1,200 feet per minute.

The device checks the film for torn sprocket holes, breaks, burnt frames, small slashes or nicks and even can determine whether any footage has been cut from the film.

QUAIL

Beats 2 in the bush

By RICHARD S. HOWLAND
Staff Writer

The mind behind Quail, Inc. is no bird-brain.

Hank Bogardus, then a marketing consultant, started this ambitious Anaheim company a year ago and says he will have 70,000 quail this spring to sell to dining establishments around the country, including several in the Long Beach area.

For those who must see in order to believe that quail is on a local menu, Bogardus listed these buyers of his bird: the Long Beach Naval Station commissary, the Edgewater Hyatt House, the Bel Air Bay Club in Pacific Palisades, and Air France's inflight service out of LA airport.

The navy station also serves another of the firm's unusual products — the spicy quail egg, which is one fourth the size of a chicken egg with as much protein. Hardboiled and pickled, it's an alternative to the olive in a martini, as an hors d'oeuvre, or as salad garnish.

Bogardus, president of the firm, and Tony Clendenin, vice president of operations, organized the company in late 1973, with other investors joining on a cooperative basis, buying their own quail to turn over to the company for care.

A subsidiary company, Pampered Quail, Inc., 1745 Orange-thorpe Park, was formed to handle the marketing of the birds and their bite-sized eggs. The subsidiary buys the market-ready quail and the pickled eggs from Quail, Inc. at pre-set prices.

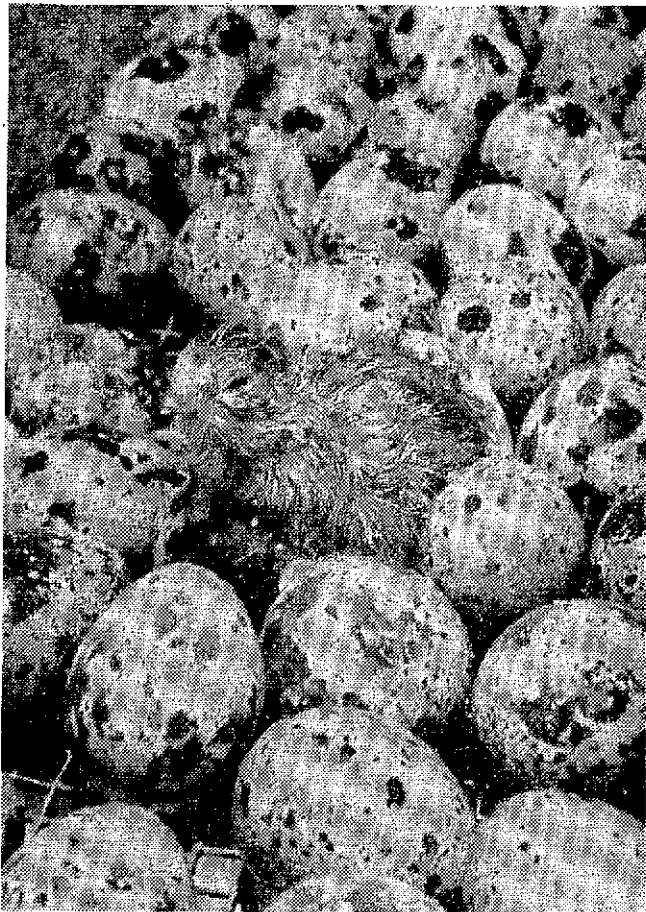

The sister companies are in an industrial park in adjacent 28,000 square foot buildings.

for eating and the kind Quail Inc. uses, is 8 weeks. After that, quail, like cattle, reach an optimum point when the cost of additional feeding is not returned on the market.

Bogardus said the bird's menu price is comparable to a quality steak, starting at about $8.50.

"Most restaurants need more variety anyway and quail takes the fatigue out of the menu," Bogardus explained.

Quail lay one egg daily, which Bogardus says is a faster breeding rate than that of rabbits. Fertile eggs go into incubators and hatch in 17 days. When the birds are 24 days old they are transferred to growing cages.

The company, according to Bogardus uses 20,000 tons of feed every week to keep the flock nourished and growing strong.

When dressed, the average weight of one bird is 5 ounces, but Bogardus expects to breed them up another ounce.

The bobtail quail native to forests and fields rarely reaches 5 ounces without the special treatment afforded the bird under the Pampered Quail trademark.

Quail as a commercial food is new to the West Coast because until now there was no supplier with consistent year-round delivery. But Quail, Inc. hopes to change that and is already expanding operations to meet an increasing demand.

Leaving no possible demand untapped, the company even sells quail droppings to worm growers.

To celebrate their success, Bogardus and Clendenin can break out their own registered trademark drinks — the Russian Quail (a vodka martini with quail eggs), the London Quail (gin martini), and Te-Quail-a (a Tequila cocktail).

Physician warns of food handlers with worms

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

A year ago Harbor Area County Health officer Dr. Howard Frankel warned of a problem he now feels could become an epidemic.

The problem: a high incidence of highly contagious parasitic intestinal disease in Southland port communities, a disease found most often among former agricultural workers who have moved to food handling jobs in canneries and restaurants.

He asked for a comprehensive survey of the problem and recommended preventative education and treatment.

Completely frustrated by the lack of action from the county, he walked away from his well paying job and entered private practice.

But his concern about the situation didn't stop and this week in Huntington Beach he again voiced his fear that the disease could erupt into an epidemic.

"I continue to hear about the problems because of my dealings with people in public health," he said in an interview in his home. "My efforts were thwarted when I was in the San Pedro-Wilmington area, and because the problem has been ignored, it's getting bigger."

According to the doctor, the problem centers around members of the state's growing low-priced labor force who have moved from jobs as ranch hands and fruit pickers to slightly better paying jobs in the area's food handling businesses.

And that, says Dr. Frankel, is why the problem could become epidemic.

"When I was with the Health Department I established two ambulatory care clinics and worked with many illegals or card-carrying aliens. They kept coming in complaining of vague stomach problems."

"I worked up a number of them and found nothing until I took stool specimens and they came back showing all kinds of diseases—worms, tapeworms, roundworms, dwarf tape worms and a large number of amoebic organisms."

And, the doctor claims, the diseases became more prevalent as the patient load in his clinics increased.

"We'd sometimes have 50 patients in an evening because the people had a place to go. Some would actually come in and say 'I've got worms'. The word had gotten out that they could be treated."

Since he left, the clinics have gone "downhill," the doctor says because tests for worms have become very infrequent.

And therein, he says, lies the problem since the diseases are so communicable—especially through the handling of food.

"Immigration officials have said that the low-paid workers—illegals or green-card holders—are not going into picking in the fields anymore, but are looking for better jobs, jobs in hospitals, restaurants, health-care facilities, food-processing plants," he says.

"There are no state laws that would help," he says. "The laws now are designed only to remove a person from the job if he has amebiasis, salmonella, shagella or hepatitis."

"They're catching this at the tail end—after the person has the disease—instead of trying to bring about the work to prevent it."

Dr. Frankel points out that there is no examination required for food handlers in the state or those in what he terms "sensitive" areas—restaurants, hospitals, or nursing homes. And this is what he has tried to push through: a change in county or state regulations which would require pre-examination and follow-up examinations for people in the food-handling business.

During his short time in keeping tabs on the parasitic diseases, Dr. Frankel said he found 19 cases of amebiasis in the harbor area, approximately five per cent of the total cases reported in the state. Yet the area, he points out, has a population of only 173,000.

And the dangerous part of the problem, the doctor maintains, is that the infected patients he found were employed as food handlers in harbor area tourist restaurants and in Terminal Island food processing plants.

"Only recently in a little town near Tyler, Tex., a school physician noticed that quite a few youngsters in a small 257-student grammar school looked anemic and he checked stool samples for worm infestation. He found 20 per cent were infested, each by more than one type of worm."

"He sent instructions home and everyone cooperated—something I feel they would do here, too," Dr. Frankel said.

This type of preventive medicine, he says, is what is needed now throughout the county.

"One big thing about this disease is the epidemic aspects of it. If someone goes to a restaurant and doesn't get explosive symptoms—like those in food poisoning—but just some vague intestinal discomfort, he usually goes home with it. And from there," he says, "it spreads."

Dr. Ichiro Kamei, chief of the acute communicable disease control division of the Community Health Services, disagrees with Dr. Frankel.

"What he's talking about doesn't cause a public health threat," Dr. Kamei maintains. "There is not general agreement whether the patient should or should not be treated. Besides," he adds, "we are not obligated to do anything about this."

What the county is obligated to do, and does do, he says, is to isolate those with such communicable diseases as typhoid and amoebic dysentery.

Air pollution 'worse than L.A.'

Brown aides rip Tahoe plans

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Brown administration said Friday carbon monoxide concentrations around Lake Tahoe are worse than those in Los Angeles and threatened to make the resort area the most polluted non-urban area in the nation.

A spokesman told the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency its plans to control transportation and water quality problems are inadequate to preserve the quality of life in the Tahoe Basin.

In a statement, Air Resources Board Chairman

Tom Quinn said Tahoe's pollution levels generally exceed those in the San Francisco Bay Area and Sacramento.

"In fact, the situation is now so bad that Tahoe's air in some respects is worse than what we find in Los Angeles," the statement said.

Charts prepared by the board staff showed average carbon monoxide concentrations and total hydrocarbon concentrations in the area exceeding those in Los Angeles.

The charts also showed overall average pollution levels, as measured at the Sahara Tahoe Hotel, exceeding all areas except Los Angeles.

Quinn said automobile traffic is creating an "extremely serious" air pollution problem.

He said the plan being considered by the agency "will provide for a substantial increase in traffic and turn the Tahoe Basin into one of the most polluted areas in the country."

Business and Transportation Secretary Donald Burns criticized the agency's plans, saying they were too costly, would not preserve the basin and did not conform with state law.

"The plan put forth by the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency does not support the protection of the basin and is not within the reasonable realm of financing by the citizens of California," his statement said.

"We intend to critically review any proposals for the future which are contingent on the construction of transportation facilities that are against our moral commitment to protect Lake Tahoe's future," he said.

Burns announced Wednesday the state does not intend to build any new freeways into or around the Lake Tahoe area. He also rejected a plan to expand U.S. 50 to four lanes.

Win Adams, chairman of the state Water Resources Control Board, said in a statement that expanding the entertainment industry would have a major impact on water quality in the area.

He said the agency should reevaluate "growth-inducement" aspects of its plan.

"Such aspects should be clearly determined so that the plan itself does not generate growth which will have an adverse environmental impact," he said.

The three officials did not attend the day-long meeting, and their state-

Bugs in booze bring license suspension

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sixty bugs in 11 bottles of booze means a five-day license suspension for a Los Angeles bar, a state board ruled Friday.

The ruling was part of a 20-day suspension upheld by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board against the license of My House, a bar on North Cahuenga Boulevard.

Fifteen days of the suspension were for serving alcoholic beverage to an "obviously intoxicated" patron. At one point the intoxicated patron put his nose in his drink when he bent over to pick up a cigarette he dropped, ABC investigators said.

The additional five-day suspension against the bar run by Patgo, Inc., was based on the bugs.

The board statement said distilled spirits were "adulterated in whole or in part of a diseased, contaminated, filthy, putrid or decomposed substance, otherwise unfit for food."

For example, one four-fifths quart of vermouth contained 20 insects, and a quart bottle of blended whiskey contained 15 insects, the department of Alcoholic Beverage Control said.

Bradley Merritt, a Los Angeles police officer, testified at the suspension hearing that on Sept. 29, 1973, he seized several liquor bottles from behind the bar because they contained insects.

Howard Gottlieb, president and vice-president of the licensed corporation, testified that his bartender had seen the bottles which were seized and told him he did not see anything in them.

'Deep Throat' suit

The 2nd District Court of Appeal Friday upheld the dismissal of former State Sen. John Harmer's suit to stop the showing of the movie "Deep Throat."

Harmer, then representing Glendale, filed suit against the Pussycat Theater in Hollywood under the 1913 Red Light Abatement Act, seeking to shut down the film.

"We find that the provisions of the Red Light Abatement Law do not extend to motion pictures," wrote Justice Mildred Lillie in the appellate decision, quoting an earlier appellate decision.

State plans to put teeth back in gummed up Medi-Cal plan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State officials confirmed Friday that they plan to restore most of a cutback in providing dentures for Medi-Cal recipients.

The rules making it harder to get the dentures raised such a public outcry that Gov. Brown himself stepped into the picture.

Richard Soderberg, chief deputy director of the Health Department, told a public hearing that rules in effect since Jan. 1 are too restrictive, and can be amended to provide for about 80 per cent of the dentures that Medi-Cal paid for last year.

Stanley R. Nuzum, senior dental consultant, told a reporter that the rules eventually adopted probably won't be much different than last year's, since the 20 per cent already has been saved in the three months the more restrictive rules have been in force.

Nevertheless, the Health Department went through the motions of a three-hour hearing on the restrictive rules, which everybody conceded will be changed.

Richard M. Ross, a department lawyer, said he didn't think another hearing would be required when the rules are finally adopted, because the objections to an 80 per cent cut in the denture program would be the same in kind as the objections to a 20 per cent cut.

Ross said that last year the state had a $62 million contract with California Dental Services to provide Medi-Cal dental work, and $10 million went for dentures. CDS claimed it lost $5 million.

In this year's $67 million contract, it was proposed to cut denture costs to $8 million. The emergency rules said people couldn't get dentures in most cases unless they had a doctor's certificate that they were needed to prevent "significant disability" or a certificate from the Department of Rehabilitation that they needed dentures to get a job.

Nuzum and Ross said negotiations are now under way with CDS that will probably eliminate both those provisions.

State to reassess health plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Brown administration announced Friday it was embarking on a two-year, $3.5 million study to reassess whether the controversial "prepaid" Medi-Cal health system is such a good idea after all.

The new study will be conducted by an advisory group of 16 health care professionals, who will "reconsider" whether prepaid contracts are desirable, and if so, how they should be arranged and administered.

Gov. Brown already has imposed a temporary "moratorium" on prepaid Medi-Cal contracts, and his Health Department has uncovered what it said was evidence of past scandals in the $100 million-a-year system.

Under the prepaid method, groups of doctors or medical associations contract with the state at a flat rate in advance to provide all health care for a Medi-Cal patient. This is different than the traditional fee-for-service, where doctors are paid every time they treat a patient.

Of 2.4 million Medi-Cal

recipients, about 269,000 are enrolled in 53 separate prepaid health plans.

Prepaid Medi-Cal was a pet project of former Gov. Ronald Reagan in his efforts to cut welfare costs.

The system was part of the 1971 welfare reforms. It was thought that by reducing paperwork and consolidating services, overall Medi-Cal costs would be reduced with prepaid contracts.

The new study, announced by Health Department Deputy Director Steven Passin, will be headed by Dr. Donald G.

Langsley, chairman of psychiatry at U.C. Davis. Health care professionals from hospitals, government, health care organizations and universities will make up the membership.

"We do not intend to repeat the past neglect of our basic responsibility which is to see to it that the medical care we purchase on behalf of Medi-Cal recipients is timely, appropriate and effective," said Passin.

Besides its study of whether prepaid plans are desirable, the advisory group also will have the responsibility of determining how the system should be evaluated.

Passin called it the most ambitious project of its kind ever undertaken in the nation, and said California would seek $3.5 million in financing from the federal government.

General Dynamics bias suit

Associated Press

Nine Mexican-Americans filed suit Friday against the General Dynamics plant in Pomona charging employment discrimination.

The suit, which will be heard in U.S. District Court by Judge William P. Gray, alleges discrimination in hiring, promotion and pay scales by the company.

Charles Zetterberg, attorney for the plaintiffs, said General Dynamics employs approximately 4,500 persons at its Pomona plant, of which only 230 are Mexican-American.

"This is far out of proportion to the available labor market," he said.

The lawyer said Ruben Gomez, the principal plaintiff, filed charges of discrimination with the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission in January 1971, but to date the EEOC has taken no action.

Police reportedly knew of Jackson escape plan

SAN RAFAEL (UPI) — A Marin County public defender has charged in an affidavit that law enforcement agencies knew in advance about the 1970 Marin County Courthouse shootout and the 1971 San Quentin escape attempt of black militant George Jackson and others, but did nothing to stop them.

Instead, Frank J. Cox charged, in the case of the San Quentin incident the agencies conspired to set up the escape attempt which ended with Jackson, two other inmates and three prison guards killed.

"This was an attempt to kill George Jackson by a preemptive first strike," Cox charged.

In the Marin County Courthouse incident, a judge and three others died. Black militant Angela Davis was tried and found innocent of charges connected with it.

The document was filed on behalf of David Johnson, one of six San Quentin inmates currently on trial for taking part in the escape attempt on Aug. 21, 1971. It had been sealed until its contents were revealed by the California Supreme Court.

Cox said he has information showing that the criminal conspiracy section of the Los Angeles Police Department and "perhaps other cooperating covert agencies" knew before the attempted breakout that an "inoperable" gun was to be smuggled into Jackson.

Cox asked the court to order the Los Angeles Police Department and other agencies to produce documents he said would prove his charges. He also said he has information linking a San Quentin Prison correctional officer to the smuggling of the weapon.

A letter written by Jackson was found by police in January of 1971 on James Edward Carr, a former cellmate of Jackson, Cox said.

The public defender said the letter referred to escape plans and the smuggling of a gun and explosives.

Cox said police did not arrest Carr when the letter was found, but he was arrested a few months later and forced to cooperate with police. He said officers threatened to expose Carr for allegedly embezzling large sums of money from the Angela Davis and Soledad Brothers defense funds.

The affidavit said Carr "was persuaded to feign participation in the plot to free George Jackson, under threat of probable death by covert leaking of information to revolutionary cadres." Carr was shot to death in San Jose on April 6, 1972.

Carr talked his attorney, Stephen Bingham, into carrying "innocuous coded messages" to and from Jackson, according to the court document.

Death voted in woman's murder

MARTINEZ (UPI) — A Contra Costa County Superior Court jury late Friday voted the death penalty for two men found guilty in the "contract" murder of a 47-year-old Colusa woman.

Edward R. Conover, 36, Pleasant Hill, and Fred J. McClelland, 30, Concord, were convicted last week of first-degree murder in the May 14 shooting death of Nitha Jean Harding.

Harding was in the process of obtaining a divorce from her husband when she was hit by one of five shots fired at her car as she drove on a rural Yolo County road.

The prosecution previously charged that her husband, Harry, 55, Napa, solicited the death from Conover in a dispute over the couple's $550,000 estate. Harding has been charged with murder for hire and is being held without bail in Woodland. He will be tried later.

The jury deliberated for 3 1/2 hours Thursday and an additional hour on Friday before deciding that a special circumstance — murder for hire — required by law for the death penalty was present.

The trial was moved to Contra Costa County from Yolo County due to pretrial news coverage.

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Look out! Skateboards are back! A rebirth of this sidewalk version of surfing is leaving a trail of inverted adolescents from San Diego to Sacramento. When skateboards were the youthful mania of the early 1960s, they were just what the name implied: a skate and a board on which an agile youngster could zip along and maneuver. Today's skateboards are more elaborate, faster, sturdier—and expensive. Manufacturers and retailers report sales are soaring as the craze swells. "In the last 30 days there's been this thing about skateboards and it's getting stronger every minute," said Clara Segal of the Broadway department stores, which are advertising them in the sports sections of newspapers across the state. The new skateboards are a far cry from their ancestors. They are made of fiberglass and lucite and come in various colors. They have specially designed truck mountings and wheels of urethane. Length ranges from 24 to 29 inches. The Broadway is selling them at prices ranging from $22.99 to $31.99. It is virtually impossible to meet the demand, said Rick Walterhoefer, co-manager of Val Surf, which sells skateboards in Woodland Hills at prices starting at $12.95 and peaking at $43.95. "Almost every day after school is out it's almost insane in here," he said. Walterhoefer credits the urethane wheel for the resurgence of skateboards. "It's a plastic wheel that grips much better than the hard wheels," he said. "You can do things that with the hard wheels the board would slide out from under you. 'You can actually go up and down a wall like riding a surfboard.'" Says one young skateboarder: "I think they're a lot of fun—if you know how to ride them and be careful." The fad's potential to bruise and break—and to speed along on those urethane wheels—has alarmed some parents and authorities. The Highway Patrol, reporting that skateboards have been clocked up to 35 miles an hour, said it is cracking down on reckless skaters. A number of youths have been issued citations for violating the right-of-way of vehicles when they careen into the streets. Ed Gottschlich, owner of the Oak Street Surf Shop in Laguna Beach, calls the craze "a periodic phenomena—skateboards come and go." He adds, "We now have vastly superior skateboards and maybe it will survive this time."

Challenge in Detroit

DETROIT (UPI)—Detroit's automakers will need some mighty strong advertising to convince buyers there's anything excitingly new about their 1976 models. With two exceptions—new compacts from Chrysler and a minicar from General Motors—the 1976 model year will go down in the books as a rare year. There's really nothing new to offer except for a few changes in trim. But 1977 and 1978 will be a completely different story.

DETROIT'S automakers have shelved a number of projects they had hoped to bring out this fall. Blame it partly on the sad state of the economy and shrinking industry profits, but there's also a growing realization among top auto executives that business as usual won't be the usual way to do business any more. Attitudes about cars have changed and automakers are slowly catching on to new realities. But the flip-flop in consumer habits in the past year because of the gasoline shortage and the recession have left many wondering just what does the public want.

IF BIG CARS are on their way out as uneconomical, gas-guzzling monsters of a lost era, Americans still are buying them in large numbers. In the first two months of the year, the larger models (intermediates on up) accounted for over 40 per cent of all sales, even with the cash rebates concentrated on small cars. Detroit, trying to save its most profitable lineup, plans to concentrate on new, lighter models of its big cars. "What's coming in Detroit is the biggest change-over this industry has made since World War II," one industry observer says. General Motors and Ford have already committed several billion dollars to the change, even going as far as borrowing to meet the cost.

BY 1980, THE largest car sold in any quantity in the United States will be little larger on the outside than today's compact Chevrolet Nova, predicts John Z. DeLoorean, a former GM vice president who left the giant automaker two years ago. "The grotesque monsters we designed in the '60s and early '70s look ridiculous today. They personify everything the public is rebelling against," the maverick automaker said. "The small-on-the-outside, big-on-the-inside passenger car is not only inevitable, but possible and practical."

FORD LAST fall introduced the car it thinks will meet that need—the luxury compact Granada. But it is little more than a large compact with relatively poor fuel economy. American Motors, the smallest of the major U.S. automakers, may have shown the way with its new small, wide Pacer.

The other new "small" cars already on the market from Detroit plants are much the same—smaller, but not really economical or too small for most tastes but better on gas. In the next five years, Detroit hopes to change all that. GM executives say cars set for 1977 and 1978 will be lighter and more efficient. Up to 700 pounds will be taken out of full-size cars, the bread-and-butter models the auto companies don't want to give up.

DETROIT'S auto executives have been parading to Washington, trying to keep the government out of their business as much as possible. What they don't want is legislation that would either tax the gas guzzlers out of existence or force their prices even higher.

In the process, Detroit is moving away from the traditional fall debut for its new models. It's putting them on the market when they're ready. Still to hit the market for summer buying is Cadillac's new Seville, a full two feet shorter than any Cadillac now sold and with a smaller engine. For 1976, the new models include the two new compacts from Chrysler, though four models were originally planned, and the Chevette from GM, the smallest car built by a U.S. automaker. Based on GM's "world car," the Chevette—it may get another name before introduction—is just over 155 inches long and weighs less than 1,900 pounds. GM hopes to have it ready for introduction next spring with a price tag below $2,400.

GM AND FORD had planned major changes in their intermediate models—the Ford Torino and Chevrolet Chevelle—but instead will just change the trim. The luxury intermediates—such as the Chevrolet Monte Carlo and Mercury Cougar—get new rooflines, but little else. Chrysler will introduce two luxury compacts—similar in size to Ford's Granada—as a step above its present Valiant and Dart models. The exact introduction date hasn't been set, but it won't be in September. And, instead of a full line of two-door, four-door hatchback and wagon models, Chrysler's sad financial shape will limit the compacts to two and four-door models. Also on the shelf for the time being are two other small cars—a minicar from Ford and a subcompact from Chrysler.

BELLFLOWER S&L A LOCAL CONCERN

The new Bellflower Savings and Loan Association expects to open its doors for business in temporary quarters at Bellflower Boulevard and Harvard Street in the fall, director Wolf Stern, has announced. It will be the only locally owned savings and loan association in the city. Stern said it is anticipated that at least 75 per cent of the stock in the association will be owned by people who reside or work in Bellflower and nearby communities. "We feel that the area has a great need for a new association and the character of the directors and stockholders will insure a commitment to serving the community," Stern said. He added that the average length of residence and or professional practice in Bellflower of the seven persons who presently comprise the board of directors is 27 years. In addition to Stern, an attorney, the board members are Kenneth J. Cleveland, a former mayor of Bellflower, Bradley J. Davis, a local jewelry store owner; W. Howard Davis, an oral surgeon; E. Thornton, real estate company owner; Julius C. Robbins, dentist; and Gerald D. Reynolds, M.D. The group was granted approval to organize the association by the California Savings and Loan Association Jan. 16. Plans call for a $1 million stock offer to the public. It will be made by means of an offering circular, subject to approval of the Savings and Loan Commission. The present address is P.O. Box 549, Bellflower 90706.

Surge reported in car leasing

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK—The recession and high prices for 1975 automobiles are prompting many Americans to rent or lease cars rather than buy them.

Two major auto rental companies, Budget and Hertz, report a surge in leasing of cars both by individuals and fleet operators. The increase in fleet leasing as distinguished from fleet buying has been going on for years and occasioned little surprise. But the spurt in individual leasing seems more a sign of the times.

A HERTZ spokesman said one million individual Americans already were leasing cars in 1973 and the number grew sharply again last year although Hertz has not yet completed its report. The Hertz spokesman was chary about giving reasons for the trend, saying it was hard to tell whether most of the individual leasers were motivated more by cost or convenience.

Budget President Morris Belzberg, on the other hand, said he thought lower cost is the main reason so many people are turning to leasing cars instead of buying. But he conceded convenience is a big factor. "People can reduce the parking and traffic ticket nuisances, and the leasing or renting company has to take over the headaches of insurance, inspections, worn-out tires, drained batteries, dented fenders and periodic tuneups and servicing.

He said there is an even more noticeable trend for two and three car families to cut down to one owned car and to rent additional cars frequently.

BUT BUDGET district managers were somewhat divided in their views. Davis Shuwall in Philadelphia, Jack Brockman in San Francisco and Dave McCaffery in Boston reported car renting and leasing up since the recession began but Mort Snyder in Washington said the business was down in his area and Jerry Berman of Los Angeles said public transportation is so poor thereabouts people must own their cars to get about and survive.

Jose Menendez, Hertz vice president for car and commercial vehicle leasing, said the whole business grew phenomenally last year and may spurt another 45 per cent this year. He said car and truck leasing volume hit $10 billion in 1973 and rose sharply from that last year although the figures are not yet in.

TAX BENEFITS, tight money and the desire to conserve operating funds turn companies off on owning their own fleets in these times.

Several people close to the auto and truck leasing picture commented that the public does not realize how dependent Detroit is on fleet sales.

"It doubtless will come as a surprise and even a shock to many," one observer said, "to learn that the individual car buyer, who Detroit spends so much money to reach by advertising and promotions, accounted for only 25 per cent of the sales in 1974. This year, car sales to individuals may account for only 20 per cent of the market."

That means 75 to 80 per cent of all vehicles the U.S. auto and truck industries turn out are sold to fleet buyers and these fleet owners increasingly tend to be rental or leasing firms.

Nope, just blocks of lenses awaiting fine grinding operation at Itek Corp. plant in Reading, Pa. The traditionally-shaped lenses are for safety eyeglasses; the round lenses are for sunglasses. Sunglass lenses processed here are used both by Itek and by other sunglass manufacturers.

Power paradox Use less and pay more

ASSOCIATED PRESS
In January 1974, the average residential customer of Florida Power & Light used 833 kilowatt hours of electricity and had a monthly bill of $24.98.

This January, the same customer used 799 kilowatt hours and paid $31.62.

The amount of electricity used decreased by 4 per cent; the bill increased by 27 per cent. The base rate stayed the same, but the so-called fuel adjustment charge went from $1.83 to $8.47—up 363 per cent.

The Florida situation is typical of what's happening across the country: Americans are using less electricity and paying more.

An Associated Press sampling showed electric bills have risen sharply in every area of the country, with most of the increase due to fuel adjustment charges which reflect higher prices paid by the utilities for oil, coal and natural gas.

The rate of increase varies sharply, from less than 10 per cent in some of the Western states to more than 100 per cent in Vermont, which like other

New England areas, is heavily dependent on expensive, imported crude oil. The average increase is about 25 or 30 per cent.

CATTLEMEN COPE, TRIM MIDDLEMAN

TULSA (UPI)—Former Oklahoma legislators Tom Tate and Ray Tucker are trying to eliminate the middleman in the cattle business to keep from going broke.

With 15,000 head of feeder cattle to dispose of each year, they concluded the sure way to lose everything was to take their cattle to the traditional market.

Last weekend they went instead straight to the public.

TATE and Tucker, operating under Ranchers' Beef, Inc., pulled a semitrailer refrigerator truck loaded with packaged frozen beef into the Exhibition Hall at the Tulsa State Fairgrounds and opened for business.

They sold more than 23,000 pounds of beef, the equivalent of more than 50 head of Tucker's grain-fed cattle.

"We've got 20 times that many available right now," Tate said. "If he had sold those on the market he would have lost about $175 a head. On this basis he's still losing money because they're being sold at less than production costs, but only about half as much."

For a look at how the marriage tax works:

— Bob and Carol are partners in a small law firm. Each earns $25,000. Each takes one personal exemption ($750) and itemizes deductions ($4,500). Each files a return under single tax schedule. Tax: $5,140 for each; total: $10,280.

Then the lawyers become marital partners, too. They now have a combined gross income of $50,000. They take two exemptions, itemize deductions ($9,000) and file joint return as a married couple. Tax: $11,915. Marriage tax: $1,635.

— Ralph, a widower with two children earns $14,000. He takes three exemptions and the standard deduction and files under head of household status. Tax: $1,882.50.

That compares with an 11.1 per cent increase in all retail prices from February 1974 to February 1975, according to the latest Consumer Price Index.

Sens. Lee Metcalf of Montana and Edmund Muskie of Maine, both Democrats, reported over the weekend that a survey they took showed the nation's utility bills increased $9.6 billion last year. They estimated that two-thirds of the jump came in the form of fuel adjustment increases, most of which are passed on to the consumer automatically.

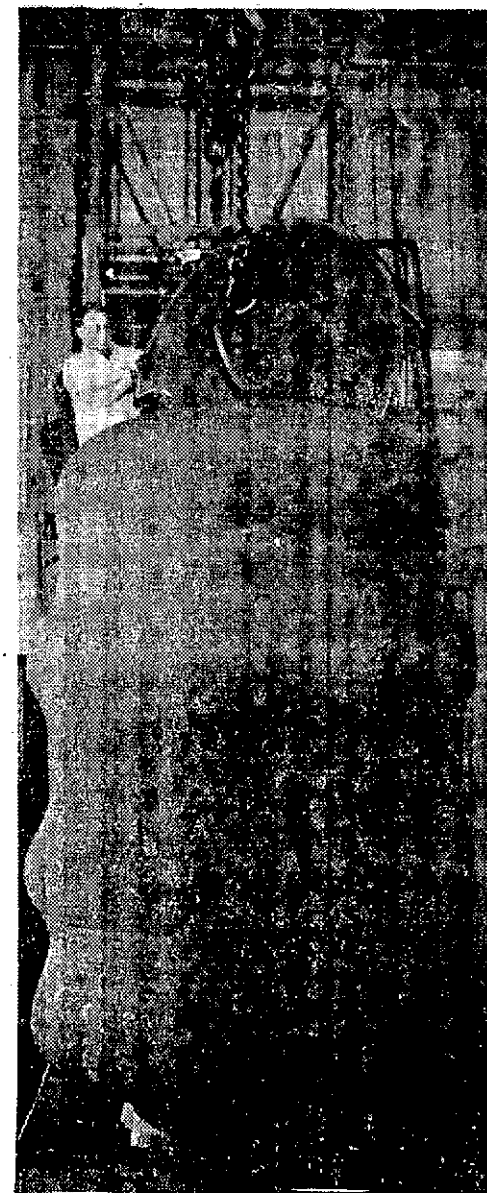

State and federal authorities already are investigating claims that utilities may have been overcharged millions of dollars for oil and that farmers paid more than they should have for propane gas.

The AP sampling of utilities in 30 states showed rate increases have been granted in the past year or are currently pending in all but two states.

Mary is the divorced mother of one child whom she supports.

Her salary is $12,000. She files as head of household taking two deductions and the standard deduction. Tax: $1,641. Combined taxes of Ralph and Mary: $3,523.50.

Ralph and Mary decide to become a joint return. After the wedding, they have a combined income of $26,000, five exemptions but only one deduction. Tax: $4,460. Marriage tax: $936.50.

Tire flips lid

Workman removes the carrying device from an uncured Goodyear earthmover tire that looks more like the world's largest barrel instead of the world's largest tire. After 16 hours in a five-story curing press at Goodyear's plant in Topeka, Kan., this will emerge as a 12-foot, 7,000-pound tire.

Virtue of living alone

NEW YORK Times Service
NEW YORK—For years, single taxpayers were complaining that the Internal Revenue Service is a domestic-minded despot who showers benefits on the marrieds and penalties on the singles. Married taxpayers had the good sense to keep still.

Then Congress tried to pacify the singles by giving them a special tax rate schedule under the Tax Reform Act that took effect in 1972. Soon marrieds began complaining too.

As two married workers, whether filing joint or separate returns, they are paying higher taxes than they would if they were not married. And just for a moment, some ponder the financial virtue of living in what in simpler times, was known as sin.

For a look at how the marriage tax works:

The Daily Investor

Leaving your broker temporarily speechless

By DON G. CAMPBELL
Q: I haven't done much about it yet, but I'm interested in the stock market and frequently would like to know more about some specific stock that I see mentioned. But I don't know any broker well enough to call him and ask about these stocks and it's a nuisance to go downtown to either the library or a brokerage office to research them. Is there any cheap reference material on this sort of thing?

A: I hate to disillusion anyone here, but aren't you always impressed when you call a broker and ask him a random question like: "What do you know about this stock, Kitchee-Koo Industries, that I saw a little squib about in the paper this morning?"

And he, without hesitation, says: "Oh KKI, you mean? It's in the baby-rubber toy industry — earned about $3.20 last year — up from $1.85 a couple of years ago. Has very little long-term debt outstanding and sold as high as 15 in '73 and as low as 8 1/2 last year. It's selling at a multiple of about 12 right now."

Good grief! What a memory! Perfect recall! Well, I shouldn't really spoil things for you, but the odds are heavy that the broker's memory is really no better than your's or mine — he's just got a great page in that handy-dandy bible of the brokerage business, Standard and Poor's "Stock Guide."

This paperbound, pocket-sized, 250-page reference book covers about 5,000 individual stocks — both listed and unlisted — and, in a thumbable, gives an impressive amount of information on each of them: where it trades, what its symbol is, its principal business, its price range in recent years, recent dividends, earnings, capitalization, price-earnings ratio and so forth.

A very handy little booklet and you can get the latest issue (it comes out monthly) for $3.50 from S & P at 345 Hudson St., New York, N.Y. 10014, or on a yearly subscription basis for $35. Or, better yet, borrow your broker's copy and leave him temporarily speechless.

Q: My son, 16 years old, was just awarded a $4,500 settlement in cash resulting from an insurance claim. As his father and guardian I want to place it in something that is reasonably safe, returns a respectable, consistent income and should be available readily when he will be of college age in two years.

A: This is what we call "no-no" money — cash that's going to be needed for a specific purpose in a specific number of months or years. It's not for risk-taking.

I'd put in in one of the well-established "money market" funds. They're currently yielding a more modest return than the 11 or 12 per cent a year they were racking up a year ago, but they are still doing better than you would get putting the same amount of money into a bank time deposit where you would also probably be tying it up for at least four years.

In a money market fund — which pools its investors' money in short term government paper, bank CDs, commercial paper, and the like — you can get your money out virtually overnight which will be important when tuition time rolls around.

Naturally, you'll want to reinvest all interest accumulating during the two-year period.

Q: I was confused by a column of yours about FDIC coverage. I know that the limit has been increased from $20,000 to $40,000, but I understand that each account is insured to that amount and not combined as your article states. Who is right? And who is wrong?

A: Well, let's call it a Mexican stand-off. You're right in your understanding of the FDIC coverage, but you're wrong in what you thought I said. Each account is, indeed, insured up to $40,000 but there's a cumulative coverage of $40,000 for each account, too. How's that?

Okay. You have a savings account of $40,000 under your name (Mrs.) and your husband has a savings account of $40,000 under his name ("Mr.") and then you have a joint savings account of $40,000 under the "Mr. and Mrs." designation. All three accounts are, indeed, insured up to $40,000.

But — here's where the misunderstanding comes in — what happens if you then open a CHECKING account for $10,000 under the "Mrs." designation? That gives you a total of $50,000 in two "Mrs." accounts and that is $10,000 over the FDIC limit although you are still fully insured for the "MR." and the "Mr. and Mrs." accounts.

I'll be the first to admit that it's a difficult thing to explain and I probably did it clumsily. You can, of course, have varying accounts totaling far more than $40,000 between you and still remain safely under the FDIC maximum — you just have to be a little cautious about how you set them up.

Q: What do they mean when they talk about a market "chartist"?

A: A "chartist" tries to determine when to buy or sell a stock by studying the chart formation of the stock's price fluctuations. This is in contrast to the "fundamentalist" who doesn't give a hoot about charts, but bases his decisions on basic market facts and figures and company reports.

Sunrise services abound

TV-Radio Editor

For the 21st year in a row, KTTV (Channel 11) will televise the Easter Sunrise Service from the Hollywood Bowl from 5:55 a.m. to 7:15 a.m. Sunday.

And, for those viewers who don't like to get up quite so early, the station will repeat highlights of the service from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m.

Radio listeners can hear the service on KNX (1070 AM), starting at 6 a.m.

The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Robert H. Schuller of the Garden Grove Community Church. Rev. Lawrence T. Young of the Los Feliz United Methodist Church will do the scripture reading, and Father Edward L. Szymanski of Our Lady of the Lake Church at Lake Arrowhead will give the benediction.

Dancer-choreographer Marge Champion will be featured in a dance interpretation of "The Lord's Prayer," as well as in a dance to "Morning Has Broken" with John West.

Contralto Peggy Coburn will sing "The Master Is Coming," and baritone Peter Shipert will offer "Panis Angelicus."

Other music for the 55th lowed by the Sunrise Trumpet Call — "Gloria Patri" — after which the audience joins for "Holy, Holy, Holy."

On radio station KNX, the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, normally heard at 6:30 a.m., will be heard at 5:30 a.m. Easter Sunday.

THE EASTER Sunday service from Philadelphia's historic Mother Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church — which was designated a National Shrine in 1965 — will be broadcast by CBS News from 9 a.m. on Channel 2.

Bishop Hubert Robinson will deliver the sermon, titled "Resurrection: A New Life-Style."

Mother Bethel A.M.E. Church, founded by the former slave Richard Allen in 1816, serves as the motivating force for the predominantly black denomination of about three million members in the United States.

From 9 to 10 a.m. Sunday on Channel 4, NBC will present the Easter Worship Service from the University Baptist Church in Fort Worth, with Rev. James Harris giving the sermon on "Not By Bread Alone."

At 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Channel 4 will televise a half-hour musical program, "A Celebration of annual Hollywood Bowl Easter service includes five numbers to be done by the Southern California Youth Choral — Scarlati's "Alleluia," "Morning Has Broken," Maillott's "The Lord's Prayer," "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "This Is the Day the Lord Hath Made" from "Easter Cantata."

"Christ the Lord Is Risen Today" will be sung by the Easter Sunrise Youth Chorus, augmented by the Blessed Sacrament Children's Choir.

The program opens with the Easter Carillon, fol-

"NURSING HOMES — Buried Alive," a half-hour KABC-TV documentary, will air at 7 p.m. Sunday on Channel 7.

The special examines life in Los Angeles-Long Beach area nursing homes. Don Ring, who produced it for KABC and is now with KPIX-TV in San Francisco, said, in a phone conversation, "We had an enormous amount of trouble getting it on the air. It is somewhat controversial, and there were legal problems."

H. R. HALDEMAN undergoes more questioning by Mike Wallace in the concluding half of a two-part interview from 6 to 7 p.m. Sunday on Channel 2. The first part aired last Sunday.

BASKETBALL fans can watch the NCAA semifinals on Channel 4 today, starting at noon with Kentucky vs. Syracuse and then UCLA vs. Louisville at 2 p.m.

Wooden fears Louisville...and Syracuse...and Kentucky

No one conceding title to UCLA

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO—John Wooden said it again Friday, the same thing he's been saying this time each season for as long as anyone can remember.

"I believe any team here can win the national championship."

There were some smiles and a few chuckles, but not as many as usual. Wooden's UCLA Bruins have not dominated collegiate basketball this term and Louisville, Kentucky and Syracuse aren't conceding them their 10th title in 12 years.

For the Bruins to hang another NCAA championship pennant in Pauley Pavilion this fall, they'll have to earn it by defeating Louisville today and the survivor of the Kentucky-Syracuse collision Monday.

A record national television audience (channel 4) and a sellout crowd of 15,000 in the San Diego Arena are expected to witness the pressure-packed doubleheader which begins at 12:10 today when upstart Syracuse challenges Kentucky. The Bruins and Cardinals vie at 2:10.

There are many who believe Syracuse doesn't belong in the finals. Wooden isn't one of them.

"Every team is good or it wouldn't be here," he told writers following the Bruins' final workout Friday. "Any team that gets into the field of 32 by a stroke of luck usually doesn't get past the semi-finals. I didn't pick Syracuse to get this far, but I didn't pick Kentucky either."

Louisville is another story and a major roadblock for the Bruins. The Cardinals are coached by Denny Crum, a former Bruin player and assistant coach. Crum's teams almost mirror Wooden's.

The Cardinals are considered the quickest team in the country by many pro scouts and their speed hasn't gone unnoticed by Wooden.

"Quickness is the most valuable asset in any sport," said the Wizard. "All you need besides quickness is having it under control."

Sophomore forward Wesley Cox (6-5) is the slowest of the Cardinals only because of a hamstring pull. "Today and Thursday were the first times Wes has run in practice since early March," said Crum.

"He's learned to play with pain or not play at all. We're not apt to win without him."

Junior Bridgeman and Allen Murphy are 6-5 seniors who interchange between forward and guard and rank 1-2 in scoring at 16.1 and 15.6 points.

Bridgeman is likely to be guarded by former high school teammate Pete Trgovich and take Bruin all-America Dave Meyers as his defensive responsibility.

Wooden was "very discouraged" with Meyers' mobility Wednesday but believes the 6-8 senior will be at peak form this afternoon. The Bruins will need another big game from sophomore Marques Johnson, who nearly dismantled Arizona State by himself (35 points, 12 rebounds) in the Western Regionals title game.

The winner of the UCLA-Louisville game will likely be crowned national champion Monday evening. Neither Kentucky, trying to rekindle the flame of the Adolph Rupp era, nor Syracuse, flaunting its "Cinderella" tag, appears to possess the total game of UCLA or Louisville.

Goodrich scores 53

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

There was a sensational shootout between two little southpaws at the Forum Friday night and the Lakers' Gail Goodrich emerged the winner.

The 11-year-veteran scored a career-high 53 points, including 36 in the second half and 22 in the fourth period as the Lakers outgunned the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, 114-103.

Goodrich's adversary,

Nate Archibald — who will probably replace him on the all-pro team this year — scored 40 points for the Kings.

It was a fantastic duel, and fortunately for the Lakers their man stayed hot to the final buzzer while Archibald ran out of steam and failed to score in the last 3½ minutes.

It was a three-point game when Archibald faded.

Goodrich was remarkable down the stretch, scoring 19 of the Lakers' last 21 points. He put in 10 points in the final three minutes when his team was protecting the three-point lead.

The Laker captain hit 21 of 38 from the field and 11 of 12 from the free throw line. The 36-point second half was a Forum record but not a club record. Elgin Baylor scored 37 in 1960.

Goodrich was the fifth Laker to score 50 or more points in a regular-season game. As a Laker, Baylor had 71, Chamberlain 66, Jerry West 63 and Rudy La Russo 50.

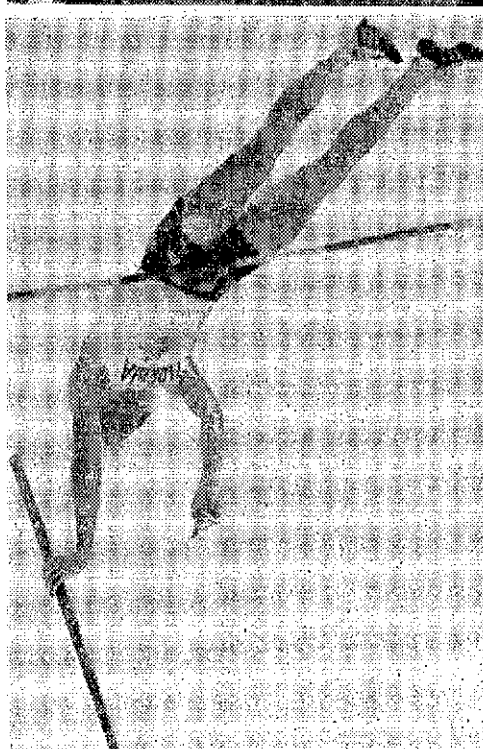

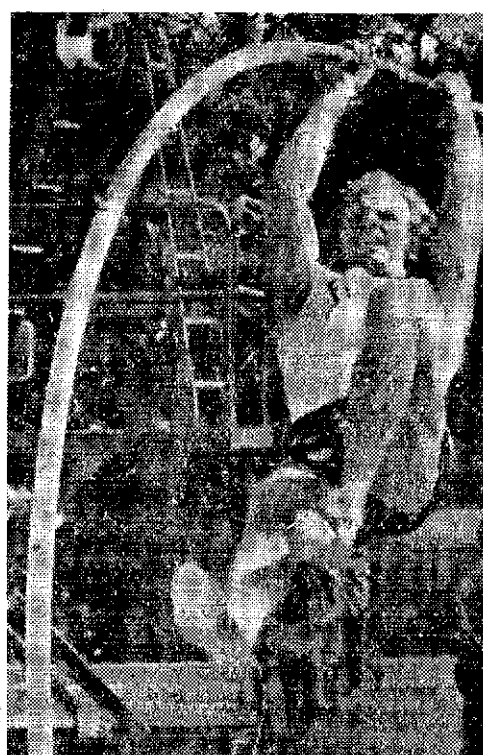

Ironically, Gail was coming off one of his

Canucks trip Kings

VANCOUVER (AP) — Leon Rochefort and Denis Ververgaert scored second-period goals Friday night, giving Vancouver a 4-2 victory over the Kings and pushing the Canucks into first place in Division II of the National Hockey League.

Rochefort broke a 1-1 tie exactly midway through the second period, then Ververgaert made it 3-1 at 17:17. Both goals came with assists from Don Lever and Bob Dailey.

John Gould had tallied his 31st goal of the season after 19 seconds of play to give the Canucks a first-period lead, but Bob Nevin tied it for the Kings before Rochefort and Ververgaert struck in the second session.

Lever scored his 38th of the campaign nearly seven minutes into the third period to give Vancouver a 4-1 lead, then Bob Berry closed out the scoring for the Kings with his 25th goal of the year with 5:19 remaining.

The victory gave Vancouver a one-point lead over second-place Chicago, which was idle Friday night. The Kings remained five points behind the first-place Montreal Canadiens in Division III.

It was the first Vancouver triumph over the Kings this season. The Kings are now 1-1-1.

With only two home games remaining, the Kings engage Vancouver

Roberts soars to greater pole vault heights—18-6½

Combined News Services

GAINESVILLE, Fla.— After two misses Friday, Dave Roberts relaxed — and set a world pole vault record.

Roberts, a former Rice University athlete now attending the University of Florida graduate school, vaulted 18-6½ to break the previous record of 18-5¼ set in 1972 by Bob Seagren.

"I had a feeling that I might be able to do it here, but I wasn't sure," Roberts said. "After going for quite awhile at 18 feet or better, you kind of get the feeling that some day you'll be able to get the record."

"I knew that I would have to be relaxed, and I was for the third attempt."

Roberts had already won the event with a vault of 18-1 when he started on Seagren's record.

Roberts came down on top of the bar on his first and second vaults.

On the third try, Roberts took some extra time, making several short runs without the pole, before soaring to the record.

"I'm surprised I broke the record today, but I knew I was going to break it soon," said Roberts. He said he had been clearing 17-6 consistently in practice the past six weeks. He said that he believed he could go higher.

Roberts was a three-time NCAA pole vaulting champion at Rice from 1971 to 1973, winning with vaults ranging from 17-3 to 17-6½.

The record ends a series of disappointments for the 6-foot-2, 135-pounder.

The Conroe, Tex., native became only the fourth person to clear 18 feet when he won the 1972 AAU competition by clearing 18-0¼ in Seattle.

But 10 days later, he failed to earn a place on the Olympic team because of more misses at that height than runner-up Steve Smith and third-place Jan Johnson. Seagren led the Olympic qualifying.

Although he is the first man to win the NCAA pole vault title outright three years in a row, he has been very inconsistent since his 1972 AAU triumph.

Nicklaus fires 63, Miller misses cut

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus wouldn't call it the best round of his career.

But it might have been.

He shot an astounding 63, eight-under-par, in chilly temperatures and gusty, tricky winds on one of the world's great golf courses Friday and stretched his lead to an all but unbeatable six shots through two rounds of the $200,000 Heritage Classic.

"It was a better round than the 64 at Augusta," he said after due consideration, harking back to the 1965 round that matched the course record in the Masters.

He likened it to other great rounds in a career that has been studded by a record 14 major championships.

He talked of a 65 on Troon in the British Open.

SCORES ON C-3

He mentioned a 67 at Oakland Hills in the U.S. Open. He considered the 1972 final round of the British Open at Muirfield, an incredible comeback that fell one stroke short of keeping alive his dream of the unattained Grand Slam.

But he wouldn't call this his best.

"I've played pretty well at times in the past," Nicklaus said. He smiled briefly, considered it again and, with a very serious expression, added: "But this was an awfully good round."

While Nicklaus was setting the record on the tight and testing Harbour Town golf links, a 6,655-yard course he helped design, Johnny Miller quietly slipped away from the resort island, a victim of the cut.

Tongue-twister

Jack Nicklaus bites tongue as he follows through on birdie putt on 7th green Friday en route to course record-setting eight-under-par 63 in Heritage Golf Classic. Nicklaus holds six-stroke lead.

—UPI Telephoto

Nicklaus, a winner the last time out and the only leader this tournament has had, finished two rounds with a 129 total, an overwhelming 13 strokes under par.

His round was two shots off the 61s Miller shot earlier this season in Tucson and Phoenix, but the courses and conditions don't compare.

"This is the toughest course in the world," Lee Trevino said of the layout that was backed out of a South Carolina swamp eight years ago. "If you let the rough grow up like they do in the U.S. Open, it'd take two weeks to play 72 holes."

"I hit only three shots I wasn't totally happy with," Nicklaus said. "I hit no bad shots."

He missed two fairways and two greens. He didn't have a bogey. He did not have a "5" on his card. He birdied five times in a stretch of six holes. He was seven-under-par after 12 holes and was flirting with the untouched 50s.

He needed only 26 strokes on the greens.

Santa Anita Derby 'wide open' today

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Staff Writer

Today's 38th running of the $127,900 Santa Anita Derby is so wide-open that one might just as well close his eyes and pick a name from a sombrero as study the past performance charts.

The current Santa Anita season has been a series of mad scrambles for most of the seven 3-year-olds in today's classic, usually viewed as one of the nation's premier events preceding the Kentucky Derby.

Five Santa Anita Derby winners (Hill Gail, Swaps, Determine, Lucky Debonair and Majestic Prince) went on to win the Kentucky classic.

This 1975 Derby crop is so well-balanced that favoritism will not likely be established until post-time.

Cutting a fine line, the field could be broken down into three segments. Either Diabolo or George Navonod should be a slim post-time favorite, with Fleet Velvet not far behind in the fans' attention. Avatar would seem to be the split-the-pack colt, with Rock of Ages, Announcer and Mr. Paul the longshots.

Each member of the top trio accounted for a $100,000 jewel of the Western juvenile "Triple Crown" before the Santa Anita meeting.

Diabolo captured the Del Mar Futurity after a lengthy stretch drive with George Navonod, but George turned the tables at the Oak Tree meeting by winning the Norfolk Stakes. Then Fleet Velvet scored impressively in the California Juvenile Stakes.

During the current meeting, Diabolo speared one stake, Fleet Velvet picked up another, with fast-closing George Navonod taking second in four consecutive appearances. Today's mile and one-eighth distance would seem to fit more to George Navonod's late-rally style than the other two.

Mr. Paul would seem to be a serious contender only if a sudden rain pelted the track. Announcer has been close to the top-rated quartet, but never has beaten that kind. Rock of Ages adds blinkers for the first time and has the hot Canadian, Sandy Hawley, on his back, thus could be the day's surprise.

LADY GOLFER HAS X-RATED SWING

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — "I didn't really know what to do," said Barbara Crawford. "I felt like I was putting on a burlesque show."

Barbara's slacks ripped from the waist to the knee as she was teeing off at the sixth hole of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament here.

She borrowed a pair of oversized rain slacks from her caddy.

"But every time I started to swing," she said, "they kept falling down. I was so embarrassed..." Barbara was so rattled she shanked two shots on the hole. One went out of bounds and she wound up with an eight.

One of Barbara's partners, Janet Caponi LePera, loaned her a pair of rain slacks at the turn. Barbara finished the first round with an 82.

Long Beach State, one strike away from squandering a one-hit pitching performance by Jim Davis, rallied for three ninth-inning runs Friday and defeated San Diego State, 4-3.

Baffled all afternoon by the slider of San Diego sophomore Dave Smith, the 49ers put together an infield single, walk, double and single for three runs and the improbable triumph in their Pacific Coast Athletic Association opener.

Hicks seeks 500 career win today

Long Beach City College baseball coach Joe Hicks will be after his 500th career victory today when the Vikings battle Compton at 2:30 in the final game of the Mike Romero Tournament at Blair Field.

Hicks watched his players earn No. 499 Friday night and remain undefeated in the round-robin tournament with a 6-5 decision over Glendale College.

Tom Hicks, Brad Libeck and Don Zimmerman provided most of the offensive muscle for the Vikes, combining for seven hits. Hicks' 3-for-4 performance made him 10-for-11 in the tournament.

However, Glendale erupted for three runs in the bottom of the ninth and were threatening to get more when LBCC relief pitcher Perry Maloney corked the rally.

Mike Romero, an active force in Long Beach area baseball for 60 years and the man for whom the tournament is named, will be on hand today to throw out the first ball.

In other action Friday, the USC freshman team held off Glendale, 6-4, and Compton nipped Phoenix, 3-2.

USC jumped to a 6-1 lead, then survived a three-run ninth inning by Glendale to record the victory.

The Tartars won their game in the bottom of the ninth when Calvin Pickett reached base on an error, advanced on a wild pitch and a fielder's choice, then scored on an infield out by Ken Smith. Phoenix had tied the score with two runs in the top of the inning.

Glendale scored the Aztecs' third run, singling, advancing to third on a sacrifice and ground out and scoring on an error.

Davis, who has allowed only two earned runs in 63 innings, shut the door at that point, retiring the final 13 Aztecs he faced.

The 49ers (19-5) and Aztecs (8-14) return to LBSU's campus field today for a noon double-header.

Only Syracuse taking Syracuse seriously

By BILL LYON
SAN DIEGO — Rudy Hackett was doing his UFO imitation, hovering around the backboard.

Chris Sease, called Rocket Man by his teammates as a celebration of his jumping ability, was orbiting around the rim.

It was a typical Syracuse workout. The only thing spending much time on the floor was the ball.

"You think we been flyin', baby, wait 'til tomorrow. We're gonna sky, we're gonna fly," Sease promised.

"It's cookin' time now," agreed Hackett.

"We're not taking a 'happy-to-be-here' attitude," said Orangemen coach Roy Danforth.

"We're here to win the national championship."

Led by 6-9 senior forward Rudy Hackett (22.2), Syracuse beat La Salle and Kansas State in overtime and nipped North Carolina by two points in the final five seconds in regional play.

"If we can keep the score close down the stretch, we have the poise and alertness to win in the final minutes," added Danforth.

Trojans near another NCAA swimming title

CLEVELAND (AP) — University of Southern California sophomore John Naber collected his second victory, and the Trojans became a certain repeat champion as the second day of the NCAA Division I swimming and diving championships ended Friday.

The Trojans led with 253 points after 11 events at Cleveland State University, putting them well out in front of second-place Indiana with 195. Tennessee was third with 123 and UCLA fourth with 110.

Naber, who won the 500 freestyle Thursday, successfully defended his 100-yard backstroke crown Friday with a time of 49.94 seconds. That bettered Naber's 1974 record of 50.41 but was slower than the 49.85 he turned in Thursday, when he set an American record in the 100 backstroke leg of the 400 medley relay.

Two American records were set Friday.

George McDonnell, UCLA, set 200-yard freestyle American and NCAA records in the qualifying round with a time of 1:37.75. McDonnell won the title in that event with a 1:38.04, unseating defending champ Jim Montgomery, Indiana, who was third.

Robin Backhaus of Washington finished second.

Jerry Heidenreich, Southern Methodist, set the old 200 freestyle record at 1:38.35 in 1972.

Indiana successfully defended its 800 freestyle relay title and broke its own American record with a time of 6:36.29.

John Murphy, Montgomery, Richard Thomas and Fred Tyler put together the time that bested the 1973 Hoosier team's record of 6:36.39.

Stanford junior John Hencken won the 100 breaststroke and broke his own NCAA record with a time of 55.59. Hencken set the old NCAA record of 56.23 last year.

The 400-yard individual medley title was taken by Lee Engstrand, Tennessee, in 3:57.80, and Utah's Jeff Rolan captured the 100 butterfly title with a time of 48.95.

The 1975 championship meet ends tonight with seven events. Six American records have been set in the first 11 events.

200 yd. freestyle — George McDonnell, UCLA, 1:38.04. Robin Backhaus, Washington, 1:38.35. Jim Montgomery, Indiana, 1:38.12. Paul Buff, Auburn, 1:39.39. Scott Findor, USC, 1:38.49. Mark Greenwood, USC, 1:40.03.

100 yd. backstroke — John Naber, USC, 49.85. John Murphy, Indiana, 50.72. Mel Nash, Indiana, 50.80. Phil Schulte, Indiana, 51.63. Kendall Prigg, Tennessee, 51.24. Mike Salerno, Southern Illinois, 51.36.

"We're not taking a 'happy-to-be-here' attitude," said Orangemen coach Roy Danforth.

"We're here to win the national championship."

Led by 6-9 senior forward Rudy Hackett (22.2), Syracuse beat La Salle and Kansas State in overtime and nipped North Carolina by two points in the final five seconds in regional play.

"If we can keep the score close down the stretch, we have the poise and alertness to win in the final minutes," added Danforth.

Kennedy scored the Aztecs' third run, singling, advancing to third on a sacrifice and ground out and scoring on an error.

Davis, who has allowed only two earned runs in 63 innings, shut the door at that point, retiring the final 13 Aztecs he faced.

The 49ers (19-5) and Aztecs (8-14) return to LBSU's campus field today for a noon double-header.

Tumble Milwaukee, lift record to 13-4

In a pinch, Angels turn to Llenas

BY DON MERRY
Staff Writer
PALM SPRINGS — In a pinch, the Angels are inclined to turn to Winston Llenas.

It's only natural. The Dominican Delight holds the club record for pinch hits (37) and RBI (32).

Llenas was invited to do what he does best Friday against the Milwaukee Brewers and he accepted, driving a two-out ninth inning single over the head of Brewer leftfielder Rob Ellis to lift the Angels to a 3-2 triumph.

It was the 13th success in 17 spring ventures for the Angels.

Prior to Llenas' heroics, catcher Tom Egan's two-out seventh inning single which sent the Angels ahead, 2-1, looked like the decisive hit, but Milwaukee tied it in the eighth on a double by John Briggs and a triple by George Scott.

After Egan's hit, coach Whitey Herzog was moved to tell manager Dick Williams, "Skip, two runs isn't going to be enough today."

Why, Williams wanted to know.

"Tom Egan just isn't cut out to be a hero," Herzog laughed.

The same cannot be said for Winston Llenas.

ORIGINALLY, the master outdownt plan called for 11 players to be dismissed Friday. Then the number was reduced to seven.

When the guillotine finally fell only four heads were observed in the basket.

Pitcher Dave Sells, shortstop Mike Miley and catcher Bob Allietta were reassigned to the minor league camp at Holtville while veteran reliever Dick Selma was given his outright release.

Thus, the Angels have 36 remaining in camp and are sparing no expense in looking for the right combination.

Players on the roster as of today are guaranteed an extra month's salary.

NOLAN Ryan will be the Angels' opening night pitcher.

Who says so?

"I do," Ryan remarked Friday. "I'll be there. You can count on it."

Ryan had indicated Thursday that he was concerned about not being primed because of a lingering calf muscle tear in his right leg had deprived him of two starts.

But The Express will pitch against the Brewers today and likely work at least seven innings next Wednesday against San Francisco in Fresno.

"I see no reason to change the opening assignment," Williams added, "unless Ryan reinjures the leg."

If, for some reason, Ryan can't make it, the manager said Frank Tanana, who has been the most impressive of the starters, would be accorded the honor.

In a "b" game Friday morning, Andy Hassler went seven innings, surrendering four hits, as the Angels blanked UCLA 2-0. The winners managed two hits and scored their runs on an error and a passed ball.

Mike Kiner, son of former slugger Ralph Kiner, and Steve Connors, offspring of actor Chuck Connors, were in the Bruin lineup, but this was not the day to make their fathers proud.

Between them they were 0-for-6.

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer
VERO BEACH, Fla. — Juan Marichal's first appearance in an exhibition game will be in Arizona, possibly Monday night or Tuesday afternoon against his former club, the San Francisco Giants.

"I would like to pitch against the Giants, but only if I'm ready," said Marichal, signed by the Dodgers as a free agent.

"If not against the Giants, then I'm certain to pitch in one of the games in Arizona."

The Arizona trip also has the Dodgers meeting the Chicago Cubs Wednesday and Oakland Thursday.

Monday night's game will be televised (Channel 11, 7 p.m.).

THE Dodgers have added catcher Paul Ray

Powell to their traveling roster for the Arizona trip.

The reason is that Joe Ferguson still has a slight pull in his back as well as an infection on his chin which prevents him from wearing a catcher's mask.

THE TOP contenders for the Jim and Dede Mulvey Award as the outstanding rookie in Dodger town are pitcher Rick Rhoden and outfielder Henry Cruz.

Rhoden has a 2.81 ERA and a 2-0 record in four games. Cruz is hitting only .250 but is rated the best gloveman in the Dodger outfield.

Tip-toe putout

Chicago White Sox catcher Brian Downing dives to tag out Red Sox runner Juan Beniquez on toe Friday during exhibition contest. Beniquez tried to score from second on single by Tony Conigliaro.

Buckner on block? Palmer's arm: sour to sweet

Jim Palmer is taking a cautious attitude toward his attempt to return from the arm trouble that turned him from a Cy Young Award winner into a losing pitcher last season.

"It feels good now," said the Baltimore Orioles' righthander, glancing at the right elbow that went sour last summer. But tomorrow, he admits, may be a different story.

This spring, Palmer has resembled the man who won 20 games or more for four consecutive seasons and was voted the American League's top pitcher in 1973.

In five starts, he has racked up three victories against no losses. More significant, Palmer has felt no recurrence of the pain in the nerve of his elbow that sidelined him for long stretches in 1974, when he finished with a 7-12 mark.

Despite the good omens the 29-year-old New York City native refuses to become overly optimistic.

"I have to take it game by game, even now when the arm feels good," he said. "It's not like a muscular or tendon problem where I can take a shot of cortisone. The problem is in the nerve. There's no reason to get excited yet. It's something I can't control."

To regain to touch he lost last year, Palmer has changed his routine. He soaks the elbow in ice for 15 minutes after every pitching assignment, and has given up golf, a game he loves almost as much as baseball.

Palmer plays tennis. But in deference to his elbow, he now plays left-handed.

and relief pitcher Eddie Watt to the Mets for Rusty Staub, 31.

Hahn, who came to the Phillies in the Tug McGraw deal with the Mets, is considered a good fielder but weak hitter. Bannister is Philadelphia's top candidate for the starting centerfield berth.

THE OAKLAND A's placed Jesus Alou, a 12-year veteran of major league baseball, on waivers after adding a minor leaguer from the Montreal Expos' organization to their pinch-running corps.

Rod Gilbreath's two-out single in the ninth inning drove in the winning run Friday for Atlanta's 5-4 victory over the Dodgers in a B-team exhibition baseball game.

The Braves tied the score in the same inning when Biff Pocoroba crossed on Bob Beal's single.

Joe Simpson smacked a two-run homer for the Dodgers in the fifth and Pocoroba hit a solo blast for the Braves in the same inning.

In other exhibition contests Boston tripped the White Sox, 9-5; Houston pounded Texas, 15-10; San Francisco edged San Diego, 3-2, and Cleveland nipped Oakland, 9-8.

Chris Speier singled home Gary Matthews with the winning run as the San Francisco Giants scored twice in the ninth inning to nip the San Diego Padres.

The Houston Astros went on their biggest batting spree of the spring Friday, pounding five Texas Ranger pitchers for 22 hits for their victory.

Ferguson Jenkins, a 25-game winner last season, bore the brunt of the assault, giving up 11 hits and 8 runs in three innings. Greg Gross was the big gun for the Astros, getting three hits in as many at bats and driving in four runs.

Catcher Bob Montgomery belted a three-run triple in the sixth and a three-run homer in the 10th to lead the Boston Red Sox past the Chicago White Sox.

Boston's 15-hit attack also included five hits by outfielder Juan Beniquez, whose run-scoring double tied the game in the ninth.

John Lowenstein drilled a ninth-inning two-run single to lead Cleveland past Oakland.

Lowenstein's bases-loaded pinch single gave the Indians their fourth consecutive win.

In evening contests, Baltimore tumbled Kansas City, 4-2; Minnesota stopped Montreal, 5-1, and New York halted Atlanta, 4-1.

Bob Oliver's second home behind Craig Nettles' sixth-inning single ended a four-game Yankee losing streak. Doc Medich yielded only three hits in seven innings.

Don Baylor stroked a home run and a double, drove in two runs and scored twice to lead Baltimore past Kansas City.

Vic Albury allowed four hits in seven innings to pitch Minnesota past Montreal.

Willie Horton and Nate Colbert collected seven hits and four RBI to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 7-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Detroit pounded starter Gary Nolan and two relievers for its hits enroute to its eighth triumph against 15 losses. Horton collected three singles, one driving in a run, and a solo home. Colbert singled in a run, doubled in another and added another single.

Johnny Bench accounted for three of the Cincinnati runs with a pair of homers.

THE DODGERS are two players over the 25-man limit. They will make their final cuts next weekend during the Freeway Series with the Angels.

Certainly, one pitcher will be cut, which makes Marichal's performance vital. If he figures to help, then either Al Downing or Eddie Solomon, who has no options remaining, would be involved in a deal. It appears a certainty that Rhoden will earn a position on the club.

Cruz will likely be returned to Albuquerque.

VICE PRESIDENT Al Campanis will not rejoin the club until it is in Arizona.

He is with his wife, Bess, who is at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, N.Y., for extensive tests.

IDLE Friday, the Dodgers close their Florida phase of spring training with a weekend series against the Boston Red Sox.

Today, Downing faces Reggie Cleveland at Winter Haven; Sunday, Andy Messersmith opposes Rick Wise at Vero Beach.

Carner clings to LPGA lead

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Five-year veteran JoAnne Carner clung to a one-stroke lead with an even-par 72 Friday for a 36-hole total of 139 in the $70,000 LPGA Open.

Close behind after 36 holes was tiny blonde Judy Rankin, who shot a 67 for a four-under-par 140.

Mrs. Carner had birdies on the sixth and ninth holes and bogeys on the second and eighth to give her an even 36 on the front side. She was one stroke over par on the back nine after a bogey on 12.

"When I stepped on the 18th green, I heard someone say, 'Rankin was four under,' so I knew I'd better putt well," Mrs. Carner said. She missed a nine-foot putt for a possible eagle, then tapped in her third birdie of the day to save her lead.

"I couldn't get comfortable over the putter," Mrs. Carner said. "That made me putt scared and short." Mrs. Carner shot an opening round 67 despite high winds and low temperatures which bothered most players.

"I am pleased, but it wasn't very exciting," Mrs. Rankin said. "I had trouble putting Thursday, but they came better today (Friday)."

The 13-year circuit

veteran had birdies on the 2nd, 4th, 9th, 15th and 18th holes. She was one stroke ahead of Jane Bialock, who shot a one-under-par 71 for 141.

Tied for fourth at two-under par 142 were Kathy Ahern, Gerdea Boykin, Joyce Kazmierski and Sandra Haynie.

THE PHILADELPHIA Phillies, continuing their search for a lefthanded hitter, are negotiating with the Dodgers for Bill Buckner.

Buckner, 26, a first baseman and outfielder whose .314 batting average was third best in the National League in 1974, reportedly is on the trading block because the Dodgers need a starting pitcher and an outfielder to replace sore-armed center-fielder Jimmy Wynn.

The Phillies, who say the talks are in the preliminary stage, are offering pitcher Wayne Twitchell and outfielder Don Hahn. The Dodgers are interested in Twitchell but would rather have Alan Bannister or Mike Anderson than Hahn.

Earlier in the week, Paul Owens, director of the Phillies' player personnel, offered Twitchell

John Lowenstein drilled a ninth-inning two-run single to lead Cleveland past Oakland.

Lowenstein's bases-loaded pinch single gave the Indians their fourth consecutive win.

In evening contests, Baltimore tumbled Kansas City, 4-2; Minnesota stopped Montreal, 5-1, and New York halted Atlanta, 4-1.

Bob Oliver's second home behind Craig Nettles' sixth-inning single ended a four-game Yankee losing streak. Doc Medich yielded only three hits in seven innings.

Don Baylor stroked a home run and a double, drove in two runs and scored twice to lead Baltimore past Kansas City.

Vic Albury allowed four hits in seven innings to pitch Minnesota past Montreal.

Willie Horton and Nate Colbert collected seven hits and four RBI to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 7-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Detroit pounded starter Gary Nolan and two relievers for its hits enroute to its eighth triumph against 15 losses. Horton collected three singles, one driving in a run, and a solo home. Colbert singled in a run, doubled in another and added another single.

Johnny Bench accounted for three of the Cincinnati runs with a pair of homers.

Napoles is universally recognized as the welterweight champion, but the World Boxing Association has said it does not consider this fight a title bout. However, the WBA said it will not withdraw recognition of Napoles and that he has promised to defend his title against a WBA-selected opponent by April 30.

The WBA does not recognize Muniz among its top 10 challengers. He is ranked sixth by the World Boxing Council.

Muniz, 28, who has a record of 39 wins, six defeats and a draw, will get $15,000. Napoles, 72-6-0, with 61 knockouts in a 17-year pro career, will get $160,000.

A GRUDGE RACE: 49ERS VS. NORTHRIDGE TODAY

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

It's a holiday meet, a non-conference meet, but Long Beach State vs. Northridge is "one of the most important meets of the year."

"I'd rather beat Cliff Abel (Northridge coach) than any coach in the country," Long Beach State's track tutor, Ron Allice, har-rumphed Friday.

"We've had an extremely strong rivalry since I

Albert Shorts, tireless sprint transfer from Long Beach City College, may hold the victory key.

On Tuesday, competing against a strong Idaho State challenge, Shorts won the 440, won the 220, anchored the winning 440-relay team, anchored the winning mile relay team.

Allice has assigned Shorts the same burden today.

Allice also expects big performances from Lee Dick, Ken Cowl and Dan Gardner.

"Dick ran a 9:14 2-mile Tuesday in 35 mile per hour winds," Allice pointed ed out. "That effort would have worth about an 8:50 in good weather."

Cowl threw the discus 176-2 and the shot 49-14, life bests, while Gardner manipulated the pie plate 176-0.

THE INSIDE LANE. Northridge has one of the better track teams on any level. Its bellwethers include 4:02 mile runner Conrad Gonzales, 7-foot high jumper and 52-foot triple jumper Joe Frazier, 58-foot shotputter Ken Albright, a 440-relay team which won the college division championship last year, and a group of long distance gallopers who placed among the top five in cross country team standings...Bill Helichew of L.B. is the man to beat in the high jump. He's become consistent at 6-9, 6-10...Patty Johnson, America's premiere Ms. hurdler, plans to enroll at Long Beach State in the fall. Francie Larrieu, America's No. 1 distance runner, has dropped out of the UCLA track program as a result of unfulfilled promises and has expressed some interest in L.B. State. Kathy Schmidt also is disillusioned with the UCLA program and is contemplating a change of scenery. With that trioka Long Beach — or any school — would be a good bet to win the NCAA team title...Martha Watson, 3-time long jump Olympian from Long Beach, has accepted a position as coordinator of girls' and women's sports for the city of Carson parks and recreation department. Martha has jumped 21-2 this season — "I'm looking for a 22-footer before Montreal (1976 Olympic site)...Is Benny Brown, the world's fastest quarter-mile, permanently ineligible at UCLA?...The Bruins hoped that he would regain his academic good-standing prior to the April conference duels...The SFAAU championships on June 7-8 at UCLA will include men's and women's events.

Profiles of prep basketball stars

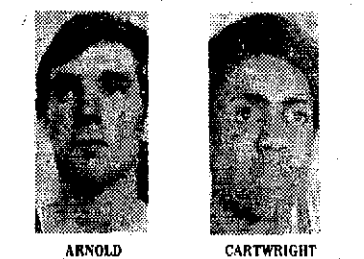

The Independent, Press-Telegram contacted college coaches across the country to obtain capsule comments on high school players competing in Sunday's California Basketball Classic at 7:05 p.m. in the Long Beach Arena.

Tickets for the game may be purchased at the Arena or all Ticketron and Mutual agencies.

CALIFORNIA ALL-STARS

NEIL ARNOLD: Long Beach Wilson...6-2, 165...24.8 points, converted 174 of 187 free throws (.931) and had streaks of 46 and 42 in row...all-CIF, co-city and Moore League most valuable player with Hardy, tallest player on Wilson team...broke Larry Hudson's league scoring record by incredible 53 points...no sleeper, quality guard, definitely big time, hard-nosed, no question of offensive skills, never takes bad shot (.804 from floor).

JERRY BROWN: Mt. Shasta...6-7, 205...22.6 points, 12.4 rebounds...averaged more than 20 points a game each of four seasons as starter, played at school with enrollment of only 335...was most valuable player of the Shasta-Cascade League three years in a row on a team twice won its league title and shared championship another...usually played against weaker competition than caliber of other players in game, consistent scorer with good outside touch...reportedly leaning toward Pepperdine.

ARNOLD BROWN

BILL CARTWRIGHT: Elk Grove...7-1, 220...38.5 points, 21.9 rebounds...two-year all-America...led team to Northern California Tournament of Champions title...in one game against McClymonds of Oakland, scored 50 points, pulled down 32 rebounds and blocked 12 shots...outstanding in every category, all skills to be one of premier centers in game's history, best big man in country, unbelievable quickness and outside shooter for size, can go to basket with ball, highly competitive, will go to floor for loose ball whether team 15 points ahead or behind.

RAY ELLIS: San Gabriel...6-11, 28.6 points...CIF 3-A Player of Year and leading scorer...practically carried his team alone to 30-win season and 3 A championship finals...sleeper of bunch, just starting to blossom, has size and soft touch, lack of physical maturity no discredit to him.

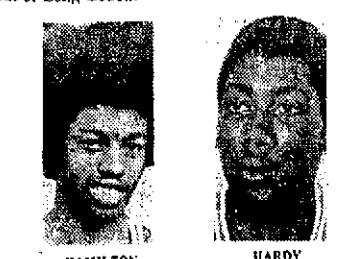

DAVID GREENWOOD: Verbum Dei...6-10, 210...20.4 points, 18 rebounds, 3 assists...two-year all-America, CIF 4-A Player of Year...Camino Real League MVP two years in a row over teammate Hamilton...dominating player yet unselfish with super attitude, sophisticated postman, exceptional speed for big man, good lateral movement, excellent defender, he and Hardy two best shot-blockers in state.

ELLIS GREENWOOD

ROY HAMILTON: Verbum Dei...6-2, 170...20.0 points, 3.5 rebounds, 7 assists...two-year all-America, all-CIF...take-charge type who was MVP in first game Thursday night...like Greenwood would have had more impressive scoring stats if he hadn't played on such a talented team...dedicated to team effort...complete guard, sets up well, runs offense, excellent passer who hits open man and can score when needed, great anticipation and quickness.

JAMES HARDY: Long Beach Jordan...6-9, 205...21.1 points, 10.7 rebounds...all-America, all-CIF, co-city MVP with Arnold...broke Bill Walton's Covina Tournament scoring record with 155 points in four games...established single-game Moore League scoring record with 50 point outburst against Millikan...MVP of San Dimas Tournament where Greenwood and Laimbeer also competed...sprained arch hampered him in four mid-season games...incredible physical tools, can be best forward in country, great quickness and jumping ability, exceptional lateral movement and outside shooting touch...most recruited player to come out of Long Beach.

HAMILTON HARDY

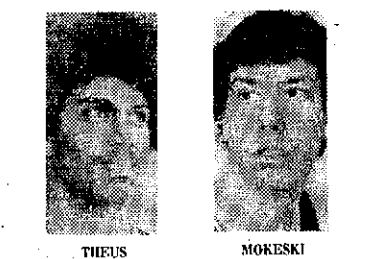

BILL LAIMBEER: Palos Verdes...6-11, 220...25.0 points, 15 rebounds...all-America, all-CIF...held own vs. Cartwright last summer, his recruiting stock went up after excellent back-to-back efforts against Verbum Dei and Greenwood, then Marina to lead his team to 4-A championships...fine outside shot, strong, courageous tough boardman, tremendous improvement in last year.

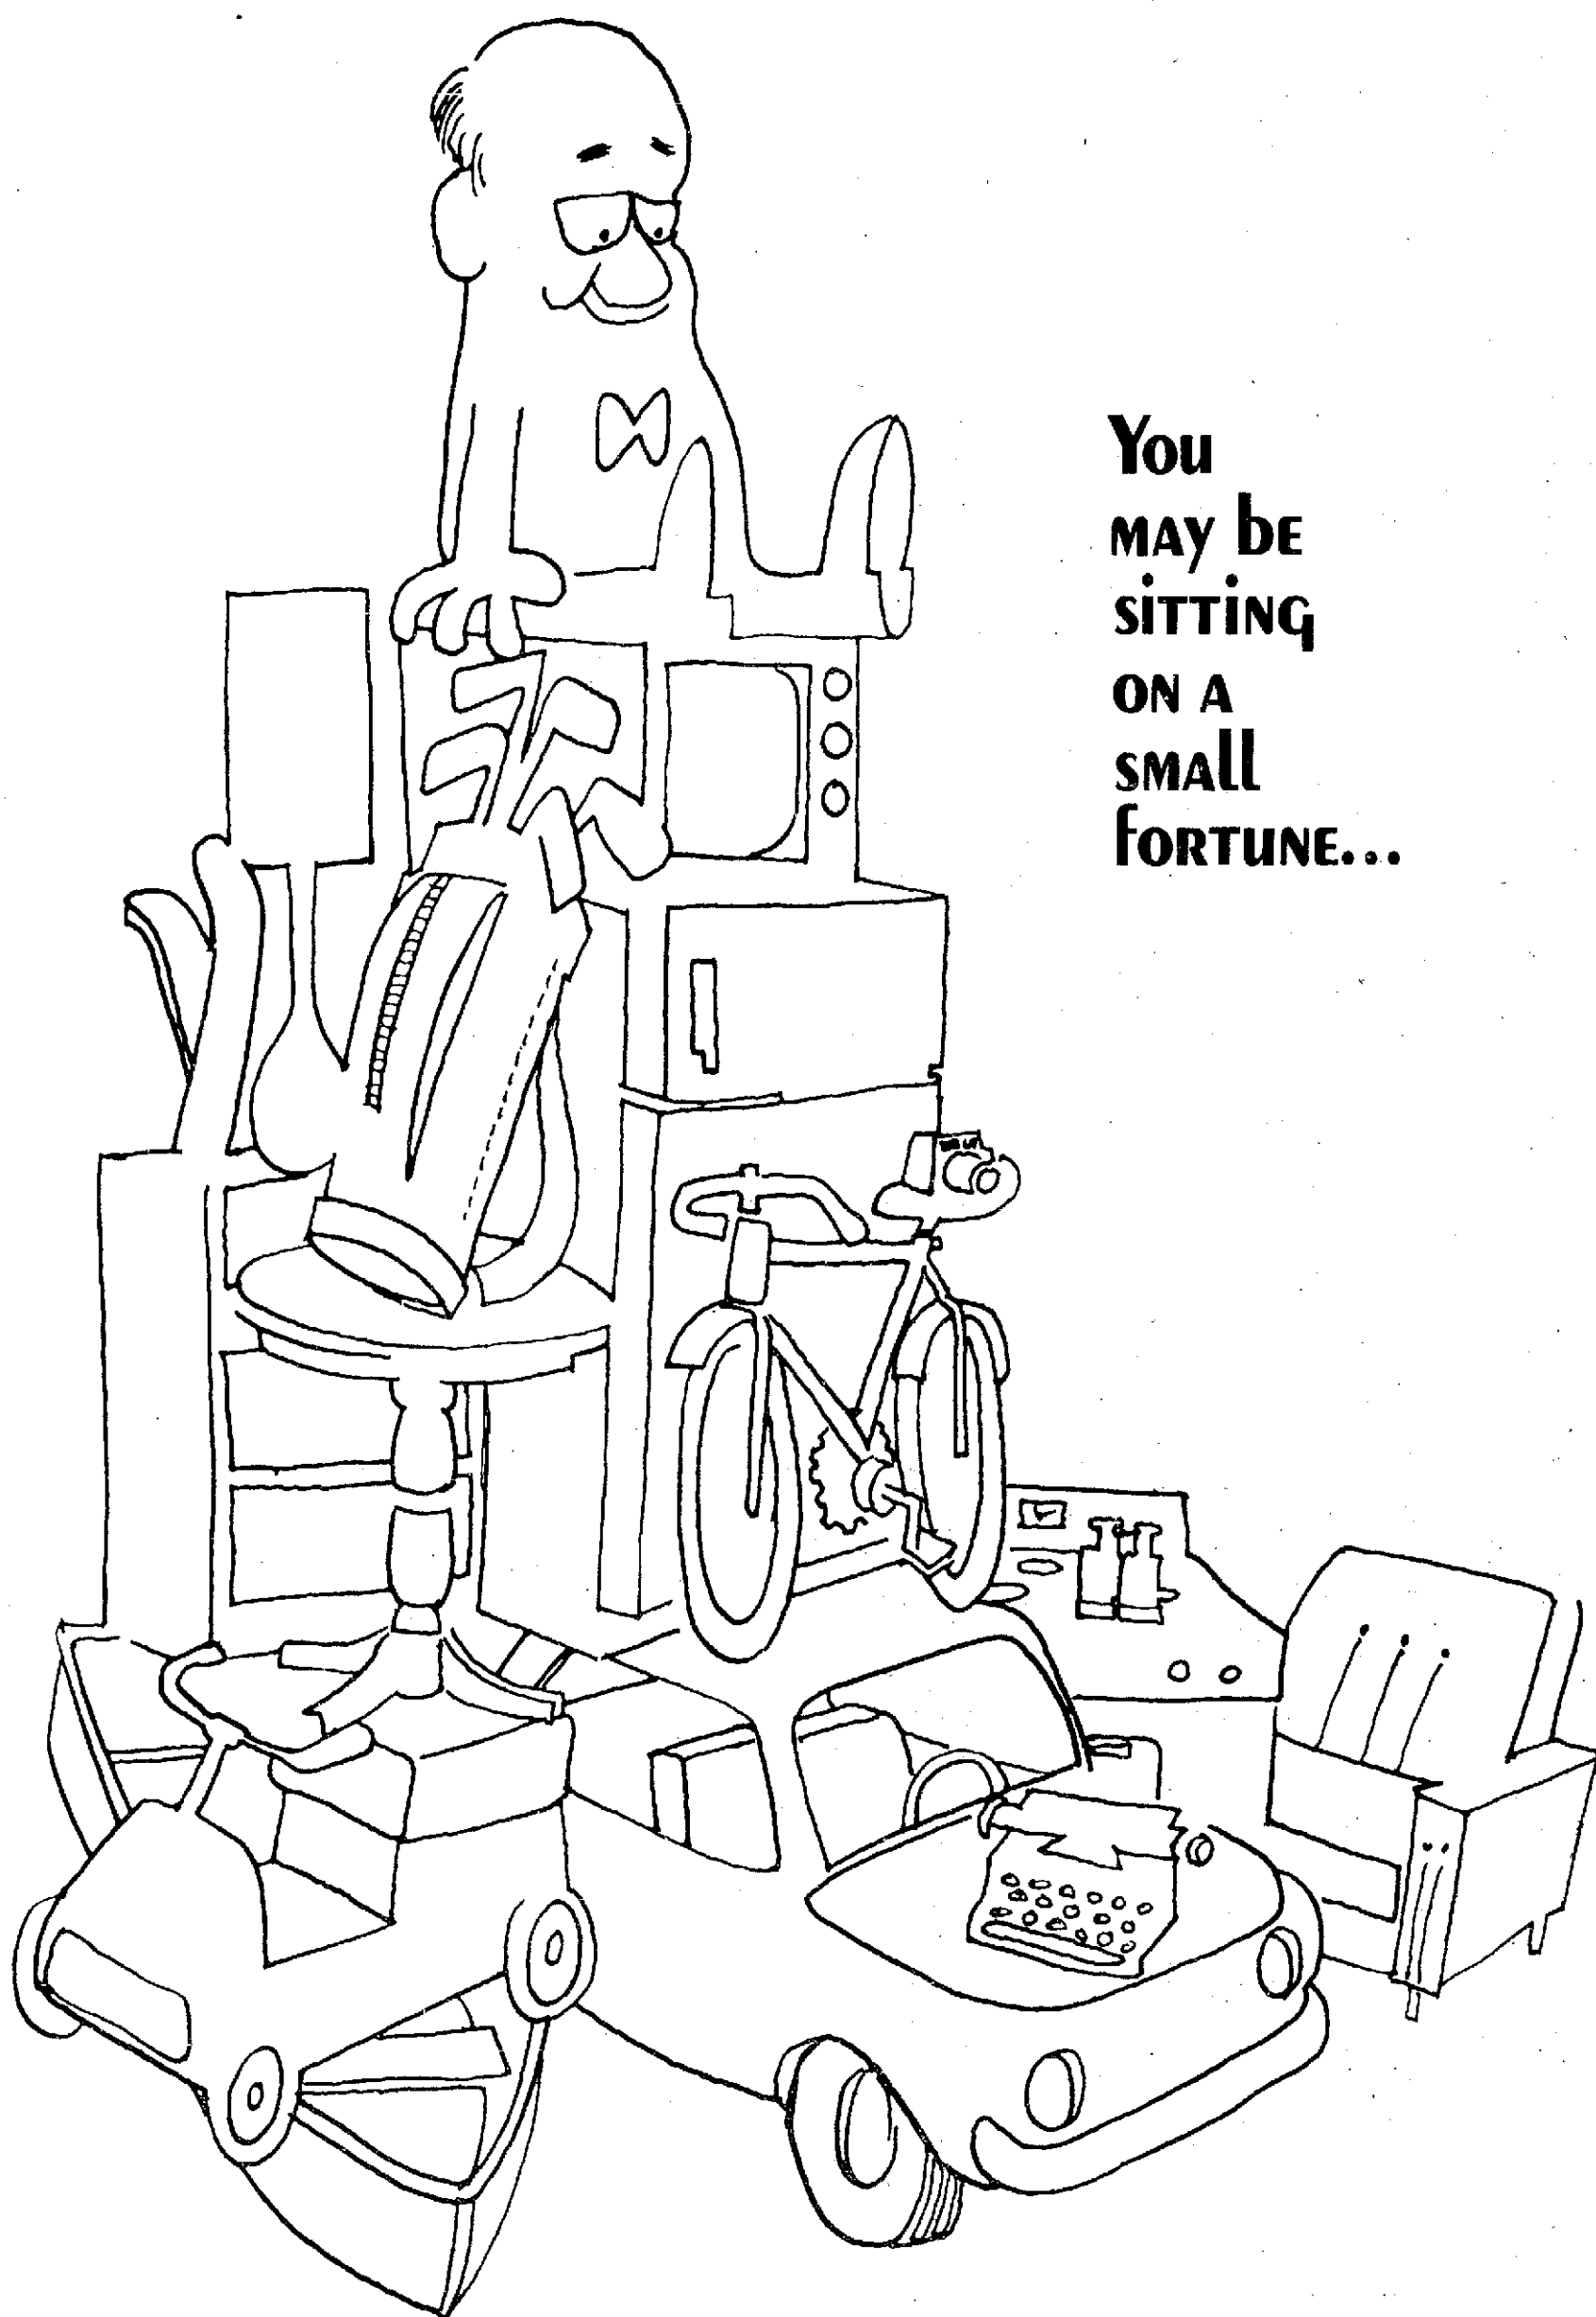

CHRIS LIPPERT: Cleveland...6-6, 182...32.1 points, 13.7 rebounds, 3.8 assists...L.A. City Player of Year and leading scorer despite being on team that was not in playoffs, West Valley League MVP...heady player, jumps well and shoots well...size and quickness drawbacks.

PAUL MOKESKI: Crespi...7-0, 220...25 points, 20 rebounds, 4 assists...all-CIF...late bloomer who some say might eventually be better than Cartwright...aggressive although not a strong rebounder for his size, enthusiastic, performs with great intensity, foot speed is excellent could play forward.

REGGIE THEUS: Inglewood...6-6, 195...26.5 points, 15 rebounds, 8 assists...all-CIF...was MVP of last summer's Superstars Camp in San Diego...much like Boynes of U.S., big quick guard, no major weakness, free spirit, plays city (1-on-1) game, tremendous individual skills and quickness, has played center and forward.

FLINTIE WILLIAMS: L.A. Dorsey...6-3, 190...26 points...two-year all-America, all-L.A. City, Southern League, third team all-CIF as soph at Daniel Murphy and as junior at Mt. Carmel...MVP of last summer's Olympic Development League...he's winner, enthusiastic team player, great desire, strong penetrating guard, aggressive, likes to play defense, not afraid of contact.

Forecast for Sunday

Aries (March 21-April 19): Put business and commercial concerns out of your mind. This Easter Sunday has an air of mystery and promise of spiritual awakening. Look your best, be gracious to all.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Do what you can to make this a quiet Easter. Don't add any more to your schedule than is essential. Visit with people you genuinely like, whose interests are similar to yours.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): However minimal, your creative efforts distinguish you from the majority. Give yourself and others plenty of time to plan ventures for later launching.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): If problems develop now, it's mainly because you either didn't work on them when you could or you've created confusion by making some cutting remarks. Live and let live!

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Review of the current situation shows so many faults and so much more to do that you're either challenged or defeated in mood. Cheer up; plan, but don't act just yet.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The shortest way is the simplest. Think as you go along and try not to complicate the situation with trivial details. It's a day for mind over matter. Pray for progress and serenity.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Concede on differences; avoid people who insist on talking shop. If you must work, do so efficiently. Leave the problem at hand until tomorrow.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Now it's your turn to take a break and relax. Spend a calm Easter with pleasant companions and simple pastimes. Your good humor should help all concerned. Let it be real!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stick to fundamentals. Enjoy what is at home and nearby. It's all right to be lazy for once, so put off important chores. You can learn by careful observation.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It isn't quite enough to look attractive; be your gentlest, most peaceful self and appreciate these qualities in others. Youngsters need an encouraging word.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stay on light side today. You gain nothing by going to extremes of any kind. Be at peace with friends and family. Make it an early evening and get extra rest.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): You have much to experience right now but nothing to decide upon just now. Notice differences of character and how subtly people adapt to each other's life-style.

Rejoice Together in Church This Easter

Sunday, March 30th, at 6 a.m.

Remember the first Easter Sunrise Service you attended? Try to recall the awe, the wonder, the joy. All the special feelings that you felt as you tried to understand the meaning of the early morning, the people, the prayers, the music. The Resurrection. And the love and security you felt with your parents so close. Shouldn't you pass that gift along to your children? Keep your own traditions alive?

For "children" old and young, Easter Sunrise Service begins this year at 6 a.m. with organ music and the traditional flight of white doves. The Reverend George Johnson, Lutheran Church of Long Beach, will deliver the Easter message. Music will be provided by soloist Dennis Day, along with the Western High School A Cappella Choir, Anaheim, directed by Alex Encheff.

The service is co-sponsored by the Los Alamitos-Rossmoor Ministerial Association, the Cypress Jaycees, and the Los Alamitos-Rossmoor Jaycees.

Fasting feeds hungry

By GEORGE CORNELL

Fasting, an ancient Judeo-Christian practice to foster temperance and self-discipline, is being widely revived nowadays, but with a special contemporary emphasis — to boost concern and support for the world's hungry.

The custom has spread among all sorts of groups, from Roman Catholics to Southern Baptists, from denominational cafeterias to family dining tables, from Methodists and Mormons to college campuses and among some of the U.S. Congress.

"Asceticism for our time," the president of New York's Union Theological Seminary, the Rev. Dr. Roger Shinn, called the trend.

United Methodist Bishop Francis E. Kearns of Canton, Ohio, in urging members in his area to skip at least one meal a week, says it helps to sensitize Americans to "the agony and suffering of great multitudes of people."

But the fasting also had a practical aim — those participating were asked to contribute the money saved to church programs of food aid.

Fasting, which means eating only one full meal for a day, is the general pattern of the new wave of self-denial that has caught on and spread within the past year in this richest country of the world.

"Giving up one main meal a week should be the minimum response," says the Rev. Dr. Robert J. Marshall, president of the Lutheran Church of America, whose governing convention asked its three million members to take up the practice.

The nation's Roman Catholic bishops, in their annual meeting, pledged to fast at least two days a week, and urged the 48.5 million American members to "join with us" in doing so, with resultant savings going to relief services.

That the appeal was getting extensive results showed up in diocese after diocese where bishops issued special pastoral letters about it, and by groups that signed pledges of participation.

People are "responding to this more positively" than to any other recent church effort, says Archbishop Joseph Bernardin of Cincinnati, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

'He is risen indeed!'

By MARK CLUTTER
Religion Editor

"Christ is risen!"

"He is risen indeed!"

In some countries this traditional greeting is followed by kisses for friends and strangers.

Easter traditionally begins at dawn when, the medieval people believed, the sun danced with joy at the Resurrection. It is the central day of the Christian year although every Sunday is considered a little Easter.

The Puritans disapproved of Easter with its ceremonies. It was seldom observed in the United States except in non-Puritan states like Anglican Virginia and Catholic Louisiana.

The Civil War changed that. As casualty rates mounted Christians began to think about the meaning of death and the hope of resurrection. Now it is almost universally observed by American Christians. A few denominations refrain.

Here are a few of the many outstanding events in this area:

A new event is an Easter Sunrise service, sponsored by St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Palos Verdes, at Marine Land of the Pacific, southwest Palos Verdes Peninsula. The community service will take place in the 3,000-seat amphitheatre at 6 a.m. The Peninsula Symphony, St. Paul's Choir and soloists will provide the music. Pastor Thomas C. Cooper will give the sermon. The event is non-denominational.

A "Living Cross" will be created by each child placing a flower on it at the 9:30 a.m. service at Community Congregational Church, 4111 Katella Ave., Los Alamitos. The choir will sing Randall Thompson's "Alleluia."

The Cathedral Choir and Children's Choir will sing anthems at the 10 a.m. Easter service at University Lutheran Church, 1429 Clark Ave. Pastor Elder Oscarson will preach. There will be something special for the children. At 8:45 a.m. the children will present an Easter program.

Tenor Dennis Day, long-time television and recording artist, will be the guest soloist at the 17th annual Easter sunrise service at Forest Lawn, Cypress, at 6:15 a.m. More than 7,000 worshipers are expected. There will be a flight of 500 white doves at sunrise. The memorial park is located at 4471 Lincoln Ave.

Several neighboring churches will hold a joint service on the lawn of Christian Reformed Church, 5559 E. Wardlow Road, at 6 a.m. Breakfast will be served at St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran Church, 5633 Wardlow, after the service.

Pico Rivera will hold its first Easter sunrise service at 5:50 a.m. at 530 Durfee Ave. Parking is available at the Municipal Golf Course. Services will be in English and Spanish. The event is a joint effort of churches and the city.

A youth sunrise service will be held at the Emmanuel Reformed Church, 15941 Virginia Ave., Paramount at 6:45 a.m. The worship services are at 8:30 and 11 a.m. The Rev. Harold Korver will preach. The choir, accompanied by trumpets, will present traditional music. Young people will present a musical program at 6 p.m.

The Lake Hills Community Church will hold a sunrise celebration at Lion Country Safari at 7 a.m. There will be a drive-in service at 8:45 a.m. in Lion Country. There will be worship services at 9:30 and 11 a.m. in El Toro High School, Ridge Route and Toledo. Traditional music by the chancel choir will be accompanied by trombones and trumpets.

Mrs. Kelly Ebadi, Gospel soloist, will sing at Bethany Baptist Church, 151 Marina Drive, Seal Beach, at 10:50 a.m. There will be a treasure hunt for children. Mr. and Mrs. Glen Church will provide music at the 7 p.m. service.

There will be an Easter Baptism service at 7:30 p.m., tonight at St. Anselm of Canterbury Episcopal Church, 13091 Galway St., Garden Grove. Easter services will begin at 7 a.m. There will be services at 9 a.m., 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 2283 Palo Verde Ave., will have a sunrise worship service, followed by a celebration breakfast 7 to 8:30 a.m. There will be an Easter festival service at 9 a.m. and an Easter celebration at 10:15 a.m.

Art Linkletter is host of the "Living Cross" program with 300 singers today and Sunday, 8 p.m. at Melodyland, opposite Disneyland, in Anaheim. He will interview children. A Melodyland spokesman said that the ten performances, which began last weekend, will attract 40,000 persons.

Los Altos United Methodist Church, 5950 E. Willow St., will have services at 8, 9:30 and 11 a.m. Easter breakfast will be served from 7 to 11 a.m.

St. Michael's Catholic Chapel, 525 E. 56th St., will have a High Easter

Solemn Pontifical Midnight Mass tonight. There will be other Masses at 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. Sunday. St. Michael's is American Orthodox.

Donn Clayton, minister of music at the First Christian Church of Bellflower, 17003 Clark Ave., will present his farewell concert Sunday, 7:30 p.m. at the church. Clayton, a highly honored organist, is moving to Seattle. Steve Singleton, assistant minister of Assembly of God, will present several solos.

Recording artists Jim and Marilyn Bell will sing at the 8 and 10:45 services at Los Altos Brethren Church, 6565 Stearns St.

Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, 370 Junipero Ave., will have services at 6:30, 8:30 and 11 a.m. Four choirs will enhance the services.

First Lutheran Church, 905 Atlantic Ave., will have services at 8:30 and 11 a.m. The senior choir will sing Mozart's "Gloria in Excelsis Deo" and "He Is Risen." The handbell choir will present three numbers. The young people will host Easter breakfast from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m.

The North Long Beach Brethren Church, 6095 Orange Ave., will have services at 9 and 10:30 a.m. The choir and orchestra will give a concert at 6 p.m.

Planet can be saved

EDITOR'S NOTE: An article about the oceans may seem strange on the day before Easter. Actually it is precisely timely. Easter is the day of Resurrection and renewal.

Most churches are beginning to wake up to the fact that man is the steward of God's creation. Unfortunately they are doing a lot of yawning and stretching. Capt. Jacques Cousteau, the distinguished oceanographer, tells us we had better get with it. The choice, he says, is clear: Men will either accept the duties of stewardship or die! And all the plants and animals with them.

Persons interested in the Cousteau Society can write to Box 1716, Danbury, Connecticut 06816.

By JACQUES COUSTEAU

A friend once told me a curious story I would like to share with you.

Some years ago, it seems, a European aquarium ran short of sea water just as it received a shipment of live salt water invertebrates, such as beautiful anemone, delicate featherduster worms or gorgonians.

Since the formula for sea water is well known, the curators decided to manufacture some. This was soon done. But when makes possible the incredible myriads of marine life forms. (It also makes possible our own life on land, as I shall later explain.)

Surely this blessed miracle of life is the greatest treasure on earth. Yet do we humans cherish and guard it? On the contrary. Each month we now pour so many millions of tons of poisonous waste into the living sea that in perhaps twenty years, perhaps sooner, the oceans will have received their mortal wound and will start to die.

I do not say this lightly. During the past thirty years my team and I have spent thousands of hours diving in aqualungs and other underwater devices.

the marine creatures were installed in it they soon died.

Then, an inspiration! Some real sea water was added to a tub full of the man-made and the fragile beings that were put in it lived.

Is this not marvelous? It implies that each of the trillions of drops that the great oceans comprise has a life of its own, an invisible spark that we do not understand, but that

During that time I have observed and studied closely, and with my own two eyes I have seen the oceans sicken. Certain reefs that teemed with fish only ten years ago are now almost lifeless. The ocean bottom has been raped by trawlers. Priceless wetlands have been destroyed by land fill.

And everywhere are sticky globs of oil, plastic refuse and unseen clouds of poisonous effluents.

Is all now lost? I do not believe it. If I did, I would not be writing to you today.

But I passionately believe that the perceptive few who have the opportunity to see the ultimate disaster ahead must band together now to warn the slumbering many. (It is not always thus?) Such corrective measures as exist must be put into effect immediately. Pioneering research and exploration to help us better understand the sea and its creatures must be undertaken without delay.

To this new crusade I solemnly pledge what years remain to me.

The group to which you are invited is called The Cousteau Society. Its membership will be worldwide, and one of its most important functions will be to give strength and substance to my words when I take our case before governments and other great institutions.

If, instead of speaking simply as Jacques Cousteau I can speak for hundreds or thousands of comrades, how much more closely the world will listen, how much more quickly the world will act!

A second function of The Cousteau Society will be to raise funds through its membership to support the vital exploration and research projects we are even now embarking on. Let us return now to the oceans themselves —

Often, when I describe the symptoms of oceans' sickness, I hear remarks like "they're only fish" or "they're only whales" or "they're only birds."

But I assure you that our destinies are linked with theirs in the most profound and fundamental manner. For if the oceans should die — by which I mean that all life in the sea would finally cease — this would signal the end not only for marine life, but for all other animals and plants of this earth, including man.

With life departed, the ocean would become, in effect, one enormous cesspool. Billions of decaying bodies, large and small, would create such an insupportable stench that man would be forced to leave all the coastal regions. But far worse would follow —

The ocean acts as the earth's buffer. It maintains a fine balance between the many salts and gases which make life possible. But dead seas would have no buffering effect. The carbon dioxide content of the atmosphere would start on a steady and remorseless climb and when it reached a certain level, a "greenhouse effect" would be created. The heat that normally radiates outward from earth to space would be blocked by the CO₂, and sea level temperatures would dramatically increase.

Ocean

One catastrophic effect of this heat would be melting of the icecaps at both the North and the South Poles. As a result, the oceans would rise by 100 feet or more, enough to flood almost all the world's major cities. These rising waters would drive one-third of the earth's billions inland, creating famine, fighting, chaos and disease on a scale almost impossible to imagine.

Meanwhile, the surface of the ocean would have scummed over with a thick film of decayed matter, and would no longer be able to give water freely to the skies through evaporation. Rain would become a rarity, creating global drought and even more famine.

But the final act is yet to come. The wretched remnant of the human race would now be packed cheek by jowl on the remaining highlands, bewildered, starving, struggling to survive from hour to hour. Then would be visited upon them the final plague, anoxia (lack of oxygen). This would be caused by the extinction of plankton algae and the reduction of land vegetation, the two sources that supply the oxygen you are now breathing.

And so man would finally ly die, slowly gasping out his life on some barren hill. He would have survived the oceans by perhaps thirty years. And his heirs would be bacteria and few scavenger insects.

I beg you not to dismiss this brief scenario as science fiction. The ocean can die, these horrors can happen. And there will be no place to hide.

Earth is the only planet we know of where life can exist. That is because it is that rarest of phenomena, a "water planet." Water is a peculiar and precious substance, with many oddities in its physical and chemical composition. This unique nature of water, operating in a dynamic world water system powered by the sun and the moon, provided the cradle in which life originated.

The ocean is life.

Yet again I ask, do we humans cherish and guard it? Consider these deadly skirmishes in the enormous assault we have unwittingly mounted against the oceans —

The Poisoned Rivers

A researcher asked a marine biologist if he could supply a map showing which rivers pollute the ocean. The biologist had a simpler way. He said, "Any river that flows through an urban, industrial area is loaded with pollutants."

The Sea Otters

An ecosystem of classic simplicity is the sea otter, the kelp and the sea urchin. Years ago the charming sea otter was abundant along the California coast, but now it has been almost wiped out. So the urchins it used to feed upon gnaw at the roots of the kelp, and what were once fecund marine jungles are now scrubby deserts.

Goodbye Whales

The only creatures on earth that have bigger — and maybe better — brains than humans are the Cetacea, the whales and the dolphins. Perhaps they could one day tell us something important, but it is unlikely that we will hear it. Because we are coldly, efficiently and economically killing them off. Recently my boat Calypso visited the Antarctic, and in every bay we saw piles of whale bones from the enormous kills of the forties and fifties when whales were all but wiped out. Not all of us wept, but we were all extremely upset.

The Abundance of DDT

Every chemical waste of effluent, whether in air, on land, or in water, will eventually end up in the sea. Of all the DDT compounds so far produced over 30% are already in the oceans. We know that eventually all will end up there! (Production of DDT has been stopped in the States. But as always, the producers of pollutants subsidize another research, a counter research, and then, if unsuccessful, a new untested pollutant.)

"What's a coral reef?"

Years ago pollution started damaging coral reefs. In its wake came the famous starfish, doing its immemorial job of removing sick and imperfect coral. To save the reefs, divers worked around the clock injecting formaldehyde into the unfortunate echinoderms. But, alas, they were treating symptoms, not causes. It is our own profligate poisons, not the starfish, that may doom the reefs.

"The Endless Bounty"

Remember when the inexhaustible sea, so-called, was going to feed all the world's new billions? Four years ago I knew that the amount of life in the oceans was dwindling at a terrifying rate. Yet I predicted that the fishing tonnage would continue to rise for a few years because of better equipment methods — and I was wrong. The tonnage of fish started down in 1971 and has kept going down ever since, in spite of more fishing vessels and better equipment.

I could add thousands more to these examples, and fill a dozen volumes. But I hope these few will convey my distress and concern at what is happening to our oceans, our planet and ourselves.

To do effective battle against such powerful forces of destruction, our Society must be totally independent. No one must say that The Cousteau Society was responsive to pressure of any description. So our strength will not come from government grants, institutional or selfish interests, but from individuals like you and me.

Governments, foundations and corporations, after all, do not have to breathe. We do.

How shall we accomplish our heavy task? We must present our case for the oceans to hundreds of great ones in government and industry. We must educate people around the world in classroom and theater, in television, film and print. We must continue and dramatically augment our basic research into the nature and function of the sea.

Is Love a practical basis . . .

for government?

Evidence makes it impossible to deny a need for Love in all fields. As modern pressures rise, it becomes more and more difficult to maintain and exercise a sufficient degree of love to stabilize domestic and international machinery.

If Love could ever be proven to be a universal controlling power, greater than everything else, fear and misunderstanding could be reduced to nothing.

Come and hear a man who has made his basis Love during many successful years in competitive business. We'll share the lessons he learned.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Why do Christian concepts endure?

The qualities expressed by Jesus have influenced men through the ages. Though frequently trampled upon, these gentle attributes emerge unharmed.

What is their remarkable strength?

When you're met with another's forgiveness, meekness, and unselfed love, why is it that your own bitterness fades?

There is a book which explores the penetrating effect on men's lives of these simple expressions of good. It speaks of the timeless spiritual laws which underlie these Christian qualities.

The book is Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

A copy of this book can be obtained at any Christian Science Reading Room or at the public library.

NEW YORK (AP) — Modern textbooks of ancient history, in dealing with Jesus, usually give a condensed account of his life and relate that he was crucified on orders of Pontius Pilate. But they shun dealing with the Easter phenomenon — the Resurrection.

They generally simply pass over it in silence or with qualifications, shifting at once to the growth of the early church in Jerusalem and elsewhere, with scarcely a clue to explain what actually fired that sudden extraordinary growth.

Dr. Paul L. Maier, professor of ancient history at Western Michigan University, suggests that secular histories may be ignoring some valid and objective evidence that sheds light on the case.

Noting that it generally is assumed that the Resurrection can be approached only in faith and not through the discipline of history, he says this is not entirely so, especially in regard to supporting details such as the empty tomb.

"Nor is all the evidence for the Easter phenomenon confined to the New Testament, as so many Christians and non-Christians alike seem to assume," he writes in the weekly, Christianity Today. "The science of history can penetrate at least to the outer peripheries of the events of the first Easter, and that it detects at these fringes is extraordinary."

He says, "Any ancient historian would have to admit that a profound religious explosion occurred in Jerusalem shortly after Christ's crucifixion, since the repercussions shook distant Rome with incredible speed."

In that imperial capital, only 31 years after the crucifixion, the Roman historian Tacitus, who detested Christianity, records that a "great number" of its followers so strongly believed in Christ's resurrection that they gave up their lives in Nero's persecution of 64 A.D., Maier points out.

"For a philosophy or teaching to spread that far that fast is absolutely unparalleled in the ancient world, and historians have not devoted enough attention to the implications here," he says.

He cites other secondary evidence, what he terms "fallout" of the Easter event, including the striking psychological change that transformed the frightened, hiding apostles into bold spokesmen for the faith at the risk of death.

Recounting various other "telling evidence for a mighty launching" of the faith, he says this "peripheral evidence" ordinarily would be sufficient to establish the Resurrection historically, but historians don't stamp it historical fact for one simple reason — because it "involves the supernatural." He adds:

"If it did not, historians long ago, using the same rules of their craft, would most probably have accorded Easter the same status of sober fact as say, the assassination of Julius Caesar on the Ides of March in 44 B.C."

Maier, a Lutheran and author of several works on ancient times, including "First Easter" put out by Harper & Row, says historians "have long overlooked" an important clue to Easter — the empty tomb.

It is reported not only in the Gospels, he says, but in other ancient sources, including those opposed to Christianity. Citing some of these references, he says they are the strongest kind of historical evidence, what historians call "positive evidence from a hostile source."

Football may oust historic Dixie church

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Survival of the century-old St. Joseph's Catholic church, described by its leaders as the largest church in the South, may lie with the whims of football fans at the Superdome.

The church sits in a noisy neighborhood of shops, car dealers and an interstate highway, just three blocks from the uncompleted dome.

"It was once a tremendously flourishing parish, pretty much a mixture of Irish and Italian," said the Very Rev. Morgan J. Barr, pastor. "But we sit right on the edge of downtown and we're slowly being gobbled up by the commercial district."

Only a handful of the 2,000 seats in St. Joseph's are filled during Masses now. The corporation of the Vincentian Fathers, which operates the church, is said to be near bankruptcy. Priests haven't been paid since September.

"We have turned somewhat into a service church," Father Barr said. "A lot of the people come from the hotels and motels. And, especially with the dome coming, we would become more of a service church."

"People would come here because it would be convenient to them when they're traveling. It wouldn't be a real parish with homes and people."

If the church continues, Masses would be scheduled around activities at the Superdome, he said.

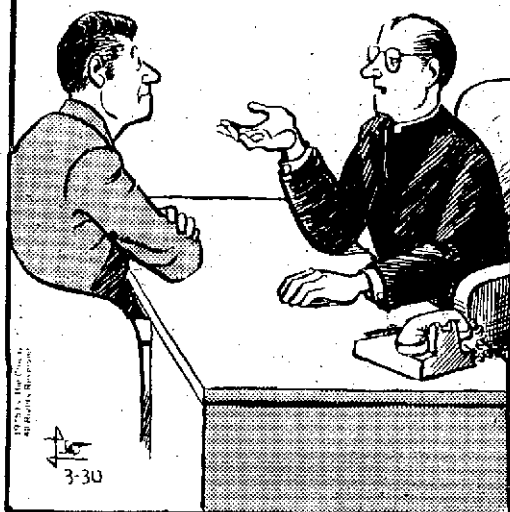

But the Vincentian Fathers will decide before the end of the month on an offer to buy the church. It would be demolished to make more room for its newest neighbor, a medical complex of the Health Education Authority of Louisiana.

Local preservationists say no, and point to the magnificent, 150-foot-high, 225-foot-long building. It has a 95-foot-high interior with Victorian pews and woodwork, statues, brass chandeliers and a marble altar.

"The likelihood is absolutely zero that this kind of interior space could ever be built again," said Monroe Labouisse Jr., a prominent restoration architect. "The most important priorities for preservation in New Orleans are those buildings which are unique and which couldn't conceivably be built in the 20th century."

Although the building is physically sound, the costs of upkeep are enormous.

Churches ired by big firms

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

The long struggle waged by many church people against the war in Vietnam has had at least some fallout — a growing skepticism about the role large corporations play in both American and international life.

During the years of the United States' most intense involvement in Indochina such groups as Clergy and Laity Concerned and the American Friends Service Committee became first aware and then concerned about the role such corporations as Dow Chemical and Honeywell played in supporting the war by the manufacture of munitions or weapons-related material for the war effort.

This concern also dovetailed with other issues that were being raised in the churches such as the role American corporations were playing in aiding white-minority rule in South Africa and Rhodesia.

The result was the formation of "conscience coalitions," voting church investment proxies at corporate stockholders' meetings for resolutions aimed at changing a firm's policy with regard to weapons manufacture and overseas investment. The movement did not end with the end of direct American involvement in Vietnam. Several church groups have already announced that they will be voting (Cont. on Page 10)

Students practice poverty

A man, approaching the checkout counter in a grocery store, discovered he had more items than he could pay for, and handed some of them to his young son to return to the shelves. A sympathetic stranger, overhearing their conversation, insisted the pair keep the food, and proceeded to pay for it.

That incident, along with the embarrassment of becoming an object of charity, is the sort of experience some seminary students are going through to give them a direct sense of what it's like to be poor and do without.

"It's a simple exercise to bring home at the first-person emotional level a small part of what it means to be, if not starving, at least deprived," says the Rev. Dr. Richard A. Hoehn, a professor at Brite Divinity School, Texas Christian University, in Fort Worth, Tex.

With many church people now undertaking various symbolic gestures, such as skipping a meal on a day or two each week, to turn attention and savings to needs of the world's underfed, he suggests a genuine sense of identification with their plight can be gained through the method used for his students.

It involves living for two weeks on a weekly budget of $8 for a single person, $10 for a couple, $12.50 for a family of three, and $2.50 for each additional family member. The amount, which must cover all food and beverage for the family, was set to reflect the budgets of many poor people, and to trigger feelings matching theirs.

"It's quite possible to get by on that kind of budget and no one starves, but the food you can get is very dull, and it's a trying experience for many students," he said in a telephone interview. "They gain some new insights, though."

In the process, surviving on the pinched resources, some become hostile, he noted. Occasionally one will relate later that he stole small items, such as a doughnut, but with pangs of conscience, went back and paid for it. Some couples, during the period, say they spanked their child in anger, because of tensions caused by lack of usual cookies or treats.

proxies at this spring's round of shareholder meetings and the Friends and CALC are involved in an ambitious lobbying and protest campaign against the BI bomber.

"We're trying to go beyond the ideology of the antiwar movement and ask the question of what the economy should really be about," he said.

According to Riesch, the Corporate Action Project is trying to serve "as a resource center for a whole network of activist groups."

"Corporate capitalism is at a dead end," he said, adding that people are looking for economic institutions that "fill a community need and that people can participate in and have some control over."

I'll See You

The long-distance telephone call spanned half the continent. The voice at one end was feminine, old and frail. The voice at the other was masculine, vital, crisply strong. A beyond-middle-age man was speaking with his aged mother.

It is strangely touching — though sometimes maybe a bit exasperating — how a man to his mother seems always to be a little boy. Pitched on that level, the telephone conversation was about the common endearing things of interest within the family.

The old lady was talking from a little Midwestern village, from an old-fashioned home on a tree-lined street. Her son sat in a towering office building in throbbing, surging Manhattan. But this was a tender, intimate communication between two people who loved each other more than words ever could convey.

He knew she wasn't well. "Mother," he said, "I am flying out tonight. I'll be with you tomorrow. We'll have a real good time together. Have Mary put one of her great apple pies together."

"Oh," she exclaimed, "I'll have all the things you like best to eat! Won't it be nice to have my boy home again." And then in her quavering voice she concluded, "I'll see you in the morning."

But when he arrived in the morning it was to be told that during the night his mother quietly, in her sleep, had gone across to the other side. There lay her beloved form, forever still, at peace. He looked upon the tranquil face, upon the lips that would not speak again, and thought of the last words he had heard her say, words he would never forget: "I'll see you in the morning."

This man, a long-time friend of mine, is a very modern individual, very businesslike, you might even say matter-of-fact. But when I asked him what he thought about that expectant "I'll see you in the morning," he looked at me in surprise. "Why," he said, "of course I'll see her in the morning."

"How do you know?"
"Don't you remember the little country

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

churches?" he asked in reply. "The churches you and I and our friends used to go to in the long ago?"

And I do well remember. I'm really glad I grew up soon after the turn of the century and was able to attend Sunday services in country churches. Looking out the windows you saw no building; only fields and woods and hills and the sky. And the preachers, while not all highly educated, were men who believed everything they said. Moreover, they had pretty real spiritual experience to communicate. They preached out of lives that actually knew God.

"Remember those old hymns?" he asked. "There's a land that is fairer than day and by faith we can see it afar. In the sweet by-and-by we shall meet on that beautiful shore. Yes, I'm very sure that I will see her in the morning."

Well, some highly regarded thinkers share this man's faith.

"It is enough for me," wrote Albert Einstein, "to contemplate the mystery of conscious life ... to reflect upon the marvelous structure of the universe ... and to try humbly to comprehend even an infinitesimal part of the intelligence manifested in nature."

"A purely materialistic philosophy is to me the height of unintelligence," wrote atomic physicist Robert Millikan, often called in his maturity the dean of American scitists. "Wise men of all ages have always seen enough to make them reverent."

Millikan observed: "The idea that nature is at bottom benevolent has now become well-nigh universal. Modern science has brought forth evidence for its belief." And he added, "Concerning what ultimately becomes of the individual in the process, science has added nothing and it has subtracted nothing. So far as science is concerned, religion can treat that problem precisely as it has in the past ..."

"The nearer I approach the end," wrote Victor Hugo, "the plainer I hear around me the immortal symphonies of the world to come." That music comes to us from every side; from the flashes of intuition described by innumerable men and women; from extra sensory phenomena; from the Scriptures. And supreme among the shining evidences is the resurrection of Jesus Christ, offering us the prospect of an immortality immeasurably glorious and, for here and now, the spiritual power to serve in the building of a better world.

In majestic words Robert Ingersoll said, "In the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing." So to those whom you love and have lost awhile, you can confidently whisper, "I'll see you in the morning."

"HALLELUJAH! JESUS LIVES!"

Resurrection of hope

By MARK CLUTTER
Religion Editor

Easter this year should be more than a spiritual experience. It should be a symbol of the resurrection of hope, the value most lost in our world today.

Ours is a crucified world. We men have driven the nails with our arrogance, ignorance, and greed.

This Easter should be the beginning of the resurrection of the world of here and now, the world in which we pass the minutes of the rest of the days of our lives.

Without this resurrection "the resurrection of the dead and the life of the world to come" seem a little beside the point.

Our immediate problem is to deal justly and practically with the problems of today. It is our duty to make the world a better place for the sons of our sons in the millennia ahead.

It can be done. Never in history have men had so much knowledge, so much expertise, so many beautiful machines with which to control and improve the "space ship" upon which we live.

And never have men faced so many cataclysmic problems. Many think that Domsday — call it Armageddon or atomic holocaust or just plain famine — is inevitable. This attitude leads to death.

First, let's look at the dark side.

Israel and Arabia will almost inevitably go to war again — and this one will make the others look like touch football.

Bangladesh, parts of India and the southern edge of the Sahara Desert are dying of famine. Starvation is endemic in many lands.

The United States, still the richest of nations, cannot prevent crime, poverty, social disorder and immense feelings of frustration.

The industrial nations are suffocating in their own pollution, and the sewers and rivers are poisoning the world's ocean, mother of us all.

One could go on and on. The list of the dark evils of our era are almost endless.

Then why should there be hope?

We should hope because for the first time man has the massive power to control evil.

Much has already been done.

Medical science has subdued one plague after another, mostly in the years of people now living.

Education has practically stamped out illiteracy in the civilized nations. Without books no people can be free.

Scientific agriculture has the know-how to stamp out famine.

The control of pollution can be accomplished whenever a people will make the effort.

War, of course, remains man's ancestral curse. It is not likely that we are near the time "when the war drums beat no longer/ and the battle flags are furled/ in the parliament of man, the federation of the world." But until that time, which must surely come, men can work to prevent and limit war.

Easter, the great festival of the Christian Church, should also be a private and personal time when the individual shakes off the death of his own hopelessness, cowardice and sloth to love life and celebrate hope.

Our crucified world can be resurrected into something better than it has ever been. This will require great social commitment. This cannot be achieved without great personal commitment.

LET'S INDULGE in a little fantasy.

The CIA of the People's Republic of China decided it should find out what the Christians of America are up to. Don't scoff: CIAs are alike the world over.

An agent named Fu Fong, wearing contact lenses which turned his eyes blue, was put ashore with instructions to spy on Christians all over America. He had an ample number of dollars.

Starting at Pudget Sound, he rambled — oh, how he rambled. He visited all the states. He went to church whenever he could, sometimes seven days a week.

He heard improbable statements from pulpits. He haunted public libraries to hone up on Christianity. He attended stately ceremonies in cathedrals filled with priceless art. He visited country churches where people handled rattlesnakes as an act of faith.

The more he rambled, the more confused he became. He was a confused as the average American man in the street.

What kind of report could he make to his superiors? What was the key, the central fact of the hodgepodge called Christianity?

On Easter morning he had a flash of insight. He could sum up his report in just two words — Cross, Resurrection!

ARE MORAL problems becoming more numerous and more complex? George Cornell, AP religion writer, thinks so.

"We have entered a period when nearly every public issue has a distinctly moral dimension, when convictions about right and wrong are pivotal. Among them, Watergate, Vietnam, equitable economic policies, racial conflicts, genetic controls, computerized data collection and relationships between the rich and the poor."

Each age has its own set of moral problems, but in this age they seem to be more numerous and complex. The mass media, especially TV, are a factor.

In past wars the people at home thought of battles as flags and prancing steeds and handsome uniforms and sabres wheeling in air. Some brave boys died, of course, but they fell instantly and painlessly for Duty, Honor, Country.

The TV brought the Vietnam War into the living room. We saw it for what it really was — cruelty, terror, pain, filth, hunger and utter exhaustion. Everyone faced two moral questions: Is this war necessary? and Is war necessary?

Attitudes toward public morality depend in part on what part of history one is in. Good Christian planters seldom questioned the morality of slavery. And they were morally outraged when Northerners attacked their 'peculiar institution.'

It is easy now to say that the frontiersmen shouldn't have slaughtered the buffalo to starve the Indians into submission. They, however, believed that it was their duty to tame a savage wilderness.

Few people before this century worried about population controls. If people became too numerous, they could always go the frontier and carve out another farm.

Moral questions now seem to be hitting us from all sides. Do we have blind spots in morality like the people of the past? Probably, but only the future will see them.

NOT LONG ago the Roman Catholic Church had a scary attractiveness to Protestants. It seemed to provide certainty. Protestantism has always been a debating society. There was always intellectual, sometimes physical war between and within the denominations. And anyone who didn't agree with what he heard was free to go and start a new church.

Catholicism seemed to offer a sure refuge, a sanctuary. The Church seemed to have precise answers to all moral and spiritual and most intellectual problems. To change the Greyhound Bus slogan, it seemed to say, "Go Catholic, and leave the

Messiah—Jesus

Religion Editor:

I wish to comment on the letter sent to you by Dr. Paul J. Hull.

It is quite amazing how people who call themselves "intelligent" can speak so dogmatically against the Bible by insinuating that it doesn't teach the second coming of Messiah.

I think the problem facing Dr. Hull and others comes from their failure to understand that Messiah was to come and offer Himself to the nation Israel to be their king. But the Sanhedrin, for reasons of their own, refused to accept Him. This was prophesied in the Word of God. Psalm 69: 7, 8, and 9 states "Because for thy sake I (Messiah) have borne reproach; shame hath covered my face. I am become a stranger unto my brethren (Israel), and an alien unto my mother's children. For the zeal of thine house (the Sanhedrin, the high priests, and scribes) hath eaten me up; and the reproaches of them that reproached Thee (God the Father) are fallen upon me."

The Bible clearly teaches that Messiah-Jesus would suffer as the Lamb of God, taking away the sins of the world. Luke 22:15 states "And he said unto them, With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer." Then verse 16 speaks of the future time when Messiah would return to this earth as King of the universe. "For I say unto you; I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God."

When Messiah-Jesus came into this world from eternity, it was necessary that He take upon Himself a body. (See Isaiah 7:14; 9:6-7). With that body he suffered a vicarious death for mankind, was buried, the third day arose from the grave, and forty days later ascended back to Heaven, where He is now seated at the right hand of the Throne of the Father (See Psalm 110:1). With that same body He will return to this earth and set up the 1,000 year reign of the Kingdom of God, that every Jewish heart yearns and prays for today. Zechariah 12:10 states "And I will pour upon the house of David (Israel), and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications; and they shall look upon me (Messiah-Jesus) WHOM THEY HAVE PIERCED, and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his firstborn."

Zechariah 14:3 states "Then shall the Lord (Messiah-Jesus) go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle." Rev.

"Middle ground"

Religion Editor:

Many people in post-Watergate America, as polls have shown, are experiencing a deepening sense of frustration and helplessness in the face of overwhelming social and economic problems that are ever more tightly circumscribing our daily lives.

The question is raised: Are individuals (rather than often inefficient bureaucratic structures) able to do anything about a situation that is perhaps already out of hand? It is obvious that most would answer in the negative, while at the same time denying that superstructures are providing answers.

However, there is something to be hopeful about.

A growing number of people working in community and church groups and organizations are showing that there is a "middle ground" between the lone individual and the unwieldy institutional structures of mass society — a middle ground which has utilized co-operation to help solve an amazing number of complex individual needs.

It is in this regard that I bring to your attention the work of an exemplary church group — the Peoples Temple — which has been a great inspiration to many thousands who need encouragement today.

Saved 'gay'

Religion Editor:

In your remarks about homosexuality in the Christian church I take exception to a very critical assumption you make. Your assumption in underscoring in your statement referring to those "DOOM-ED to the sad FATE of being gay." "Doomed" and "fate" are strong words.

Sexual desires are strongly conditioned by emotional projections and reinforcement. In the case of homosexuality this may occur very early and imperceptibly in childhood. To presume that this conditioning is irreversible is to speak despair to the homosexual who wants to change (There ARE many who do.)

The scars are deep, but I, for one, individual, can testify that they can be completely removed. I was a homosexual from as long as I can remember. It took fourteen years from my coming to know Christ and allowing His word to begin to prune and mold my thoughts to know complete deliverance from the former desires and to fully experience heterosexuality. It could have perhaps been a shorter path, but I was slow and obstinate in coming to confidence in the Scriptures and in dealing with the issues they raised in my life.

In 1 Corinthians 6 Paul mentions the sin of homosexuality (the overt acting out of those desires) and then he adds such WERE some of you. There is complete forgiveness immediately for the homosexual who trusts in the cross of Christ and future deliverance through the regenerating influence of the Holy Spirit and the Word of God.

I believe where parents implement the sexual roles defined in Scripture, there is little danger of children growing up under this emotional scar.

Spectre of Judas

Religion Editor:

As this week of March 23, 1975 progresses towards the Good Friday observances, it seems to me that the spectres of Judas Iscariot and High Priest Caiaphas are abroad in the land: Judas witnessing to the truth that he who is unfaithful to and betrays his friends betrays himself as well, and Caiaphas reminding us that we should

Women seek Catholic priesthood

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The drive for admission of women to the priesthood, already a boiling issue in the Episcopal Church, now is surfacing on a wider front among Roman Catholics.

It previously stayed mainly in the background, a matter of theological analysis, but a broad-based Roman Catholic coalition now is launching active efforts to extend ordination to women.

The move is being coordinated by an umbrella group called the Ordination Conference Task Force, involving representatives of several seminaries and of eight national organizations of Catholic nuns and other women.

"It's the first definitely focused, grass-roots movement, involving a wide spectrum of American Catholics attempting to open the priesthood to women," says Sister Patricia Hughes of Chicago, a spokeswoman for the group.

This week, it announced plans for a national conference Nov. 28-30 in Detroit on the theme, "Women in the Future Priesthood Now, a Call to Action," with expected participation by about 600 theologians, priests, sisters, laity and some bishops.

"We're acting in love and loyalty to the church," Sister Hughes says. "If we didn't love the church, we would not be seeking the priesthood."

Their objective, however, still appears distant, considering the prevailing stand against it by the world's Catholic bishops, including the Pope. Nevertheless, a 1972 preliminary study for the U.S. bishops said:

"It would seem that neither Scriptural exegesis nor theology alone can give a clear answer to this question. The ultimate answer must come from the magisterium (the bishops and Pope)..."

While most major Protestant denominations already ordain women, the Episcopal Church, often termed the "bridge" church between Protestantism and Catholicism, currently is wracked with internal struggle over the matter.

As dioceses began electing delegates for next year's denominational convention to act on the issue, candidates sided either pro or anti women's ordination. Simultaneously, investigations and hearings multiplied.

The ecclesiastical legal procedures, including pretrial inquiries in several dioceses and at the church's headquarters in New York, involved the irregular ordination of 11 women last July.

Preliminary hearings, resembling grand jury inquiries were underway in New York regarding four bishops, three of them retired, who officiated at the ordinations in defiance of the church's tradition of a male-only priesthood.

Charges or trials also were pending against two pastors, the Rev. L. Peter Beebe of Oberlin, Ohio,

On the other hand, two of the women were called as assistant parish priests, the Rev. Katrina Welles Swanson at St. Stephen's in St. Louis, and the Rev. Betty Bone Schiess at Grace Episcopal Church in Syracuse, N.Y.

Two other of the women, the Rev. Susan Hiatt of Philadelphia and the Rev. Carter Heyward of New York, have been appointed assistant professors at the Episcopal Divinity School, Cambridge, Mass., with priestly rights to celebrate communion.

The appointments drew a blast from the Rev. Canon Albert J. duBois, president of a high-church group, the American Church Union. He accused the seminary administration of "disobedience, arrogance" and "direct defiance" of the church's bishops.

thinking to us." Of course, the priests and intellectuals never saw it as that simple. But many ordinary people did.

"The Church of Rome never changes," they would say proudly.

They can no longer say that. The Church is wracked by change from the highest levels of doctrine to political stances to customs of worship.

The Rev. Hans Kung, German theologian, has created a controversy by questioning the doctrine of papal infallibility.

The Fathers Berrigan et al shocked the nation by committing felonies to make their revolutionary points.

The revolution also has its anti-change aspects. A large, expensive pamphlet put out by the Catholic Traditionalist Movement Inc. displays on its cover a skull and crossbones. It says "The New 'Mass' — Sacrilegious at its best ... Invalid at its worst ...

WARNING!" The publication is packed with scholarly and angry words demanding a return to the traditional Latin Mass.

The Pope, however, has authorized the new Mass. Father Gommard De Pauw, leader of the movement, seems to be close to insubordination.

Catholic Daughters reject ERA

MIAMI — The National Board of the 182,000-member Catholic Daughters of America (CDA) has taken an official stand against the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. The action was taken at a meeting of the board here on March 7-9.

National Regent Winifred L. Trabeau of Plaquemine, La., said that "the vague language of the ERA poses a threat, not a support of women's rights. Specific problems in women's rights should be dealt with by specific laws to meet those problems."

The board reaffirmed its belief "in the effective and continual enforcement of all laws protecting women's rights, such as the Equal Employment Opportunities Act of 1972 and the Civil Rights Act of 1964."

The statement pointed out various legal safeguards of women's rights which would be abolished by the ERA. These included the threat to the "stability of the family, the basic unit of society."

"Likewise, the ERA would harm the individual woman. It would remove her right to preferential Social Security benefits. It would wipe out state labor laws and guidelines which benefit women in industry who do heavy, manual work." In addition, the ERA "creates the possibility of additional injury to the rights of women" through its vague and undefined language.

AT PARK CHURCH LOVE FINDS A WAY

By SYLVIA A. STORMS

On a bright California Sunday morning, a dynamic young preacher in his forties stands before the pulpit at El Dorado Park Community Church in Long Beach. His sermon is not only one with evangelistic appeal, but it is also one of challenge — a plea for action on the part of believers.

"Every program within the church should have as its goal reaching people for Jesus Christ and giving out the Word of God. Those things are the only things that really count and the reason for our existence as a church! But do we truly care?"

The answer is yes! There is at "Park Church" a love one for another, a love for a lost humanity, and most of all a love for Christ. And the results are staggering! This Christ-like concern exhibited by Pastor William Miedema, his staff, and the members, plus the determination and willingness to get out and work, has helped to sky-rocket the ministry of this outstanding testimony of the Reformed Church of America. Founded upon the solid truths and authority of the Word of God, Park Church has pioneered in new and exciting methods of gospel presentation.

Located on Norwalk Boulevard, between Wardlow and Carson Streets, on approximately fourteen acres, the church complex consists of a beautiful indoor sanctuary with a seating capacity of 1400, an outdoor drive-in facility with room for 300 cars, and several educational and office buildings.

The grounds surrounding the sanctuary are reminiscent of a restful park. Fountains, lush green lawns, colorful flowers, shrubs, and trees grace the setting, providing a worshipful atmosphere for the congregation — both those inside the church building and those in the outdoor "sanctuary."

This majestic house of worship, considered by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce to be one of the city's most beautiful buildings, contains as many of the natural elements as possible so that there is a feeling of continuity throughout the entire church grounds. Two sides of the building are glassed, which serves to unite the worshippers inside with those in their automobiles.

Two morning services attract as many as 3,500 worshippers. On special days such as Easter, more than a thousand may sit in their cars at the 6:30 sunrise service as well as the 9:00 & 11:00 a.m. services. Speakers turn on automatically as cars pull into individual parking spaces. The portions of the church nearest the pastor's pulpit opens so that he is visible to the entire congregation.

Many people have been drawn to hear the gospel through this still rather novel "drive-in approach" to evangelism. Many have been won to Christ. Pastor William Miedema (or "Rev. Bill" as he is affectionately known) explained that although curiosity has brought people to Park Church, something more has kept them:

"They've driven by, looked in, and said, 'I'm going to that church someday just to see what it's like,' and they've found 'the Lord!'"

El Dorado Park Church has full time directors in several departments — music, education, youth, and business management. Special emphases have been placed on lay evangelism and the youth program.

"Our people are accepting responsibilities," continued the pastor. "Rev Ken Leestma is responsible as Minister of Lay Development for numerous outreaches, such as Visitation Groups, Adult Education, Small Groups, and Leadership Programs. Steve Bagley, our director of Youth Programs, is doing a great work with the young people.
